Fighting rages after cease-fire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim told the United Nations Security Council today that "fighting is still going on" in Cyprus after the deadline for a cease-fire that had been accepted by Greece and Turkey.

Waldheim said Turkish planes had bombarded the Nicosia airport after the truce deadline and that a British soldier was wounded by a bomb that hit a U.N. installation.

One high U.N. official said the raid occurred about an hour after the truce was to have started.

In another development, the Greek Cypriot radio claimed that a hotel was bombed by the Turks and 21 foreign tourists killed. The location of the hotel was not given in the broadcast, but it was believed to be in southern Cyprus.

There was no confirmation of the bombing and it was not known whether the reported incident occurred after the truce deadline.

Three hours before the deadline, Turkey was reported flying in fresh troops, and two hours later the armed forces' general staff in Ankara indicated that some post-truce bombing might occur.

At the 5 p.m. — 10 a.m. EDT — deadline, monitors in Beirut, Lebanon, heard the Greek Cypriot radio broadcast orders for the Greek Cypriots to stop shooting.

Earlier in the day both Greece and Turkey announced their forces on Cyprus would observe the United Nationssponsored cease-fire. And in London Foreign Secretary James Callaghan announced the two countries have agreed to meet with Britain in Geneva to discuss a new Cyprus peace settlement.

The Turkish general staff in Ankara claimed Greek Cypriots were slaughtering Turkish Cypriots in the areas of Paphos in the western part of the island and in Lefka in the north.

The General Staff said that unless this stopped, the Turkish Air Force would bomb the areas heavily.

An Associated Press dispatch from Nicosia received just before the 10 a.m. deadline reported that massive Turkish reinforcements had been landed on the beaches of northern Cyprus today. It reported that paratroopers were brought in by at least 12 Turkish C47s, and at least 30 helicopters ferried troops from landing vessels.

The dispatch went through Greek Cypriot censorship before being transmitted, and it did not say what time the reinforcements had arrived.

Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from the northern port of Kyrenia, 45 miles from Turkey and 10 miles from Nicosia, that heavy fighting was going on three hours before the ceasefire was to begin.

Jensen, who was later captured by the Turks along with two other American correspondents, said Turkish jets were bombing and strafing Greek Cypriot positions as both sides fought to improve their positions.

South of Kyrenia, Greek Cypriot artillery shells burst along the top of mountains where Turkish troops had dug in.

AP photographer Paul Roque returned to Nicosia from Kyrenia with the report that he saw two Turkish destroyers bombarding the port city.

Burglars take church pulpit over weekend

Burglars took a gun, clothing, cigarette lighters and a church pulpit lectern over the weekend, according to police.

Burglars walked into the open sanctuary of Bethel Baptist Church, 510 E. Center St., between 9 and 9:30 a.m. Sunday and left with the lectern and a table.

The front door was unlocked, police said. No value was placed on the stolen items.

Thieves crawled through a kitchen window into the O. M. Brake home, 107 N. West St., between 7 and 8 p.m. Saturday while the family was in the front yard, police said.

A 20 gauge shotgun, valued at $40, $12 in cash and a watch worth $25 were reported taken.

Glaud Plunk of Matthews told police his car was broken into between 4 and 7 p.m. Saturday while it was parked at Bootheel Lounge, 504 N. Main St.

Plunk said some men's and women's clothing was taken. He did not know the value of the clothing, he said.

R. E. Ross of Oran told police someone broke into his concession stand at the Farmer's Market, 889 W. Malone Ave., between July 13 and Friday.

He said 12 cigarette lighters, five cans of lighter fluid, five or six pounds of ground beef and one pound of pepper were stolen.

Hospital may have to lease ambulance

Missouri Delta Community Hospital may be forced to lease an ambulance for a short time this summer to ensure ambulance service to the area.

The hospital was scheduled to receive the first of its four ambulances on July 1. But product shortages have resulted in delays, and hospital Administrator Harold Jones said today the first ambulance will not arrive for at least seven weeks.

He spoke at a meeting of representatives of the hospital, city of Sikeston and Scott and New Madrid counties.

Welsh Funeral Home, which has been providing ambulance service, is scheduled to get a new hearse about Aug. 1 and is using its ambulance as a trade-in.

Welsh Funeral Home has been providing most of the ambulance service in the Sikeston area for several years.

A state law has almost ended the practice of funeral directors providing ambulance service.

The law now requires ambulances to meet certain specifications and requires two trained personnel be in the ambulance during all runs. Funeral homes could not absorb the extra costs, and the hospital agreed to take over the management of the ambulance service.

Those at the meeting decided to lease the ambulance Welsh planned to trade in for $200 a month and 10 cents a mile. The lease, tentatively worked out with the dealer this morning by telephone, would require the hospital to buy the ambulance and then for the dealer to buy it back when the new ambulances arrive.

The reason for the dealer selling the ambulance, and then buying it back, is that by selling it he is relieved of liability for the short time the ambulance will be used.

Jones said the new ambulances were numbers 37, 38 43 and 44 on a state list of 50 new ambulances to be delivered this year. Because of delays, only 17 had been delivered as of last Thursday.

Two ambulances were purchased by Sikeston, with the Jaycees paying the $7,000 bill, and Scott and New Madrid counties each purchased one.

The ambulances will be staffed by hospital personnel who have taken an 81-hour training course conducted by the R-6 School District.

Jones said the hospital has no funds to pay for the operation, and that those funds will come from ambulance fees. Any deficits will be made up on a pro-rata basis by the counties and Sikeston.

Jones said ambulance fees would start at $25 and go up on a basis of miles and time.

The radios for the ambulances are on order, Jones said, and the radio tower has already arrived.

DAEOC gets $168,000 grant

WASHINGTON — Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, based in Portageville, Mo., has been granted $168,000 by the Office of Economic Opportunity for the operation and administration of its programs on a three-month basis, effective July 1, according to an announcement by Missouri 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison.

Counties sharing the funds will include: Dunklin, Mississippi, Scott, New Madrid, Pemiscot and Stoddard.

Former governor, wife honored by 750 people

"I have seen Warren Hearnes in the role of leadership ... I have seen him lead and build ... if it hadn't been for him I would not be chairman of the Democratic National Committee," Robert Strauss of Washington, D.C., asserted Saturday night before approximately 750 people who attended a Democratic fund- raising dinner jointly honoring the birthdays of former Gov. and Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes of Charleston at Ramada Inn.

This was the 10th annual joint birthday party for the ex- governor and his wife who both celebrate birthdays on July 24.

Strauss remarked that two years ago people were saying that the Democratic Party was finished. "They were wrong. The Democratic Party, nationally, is more united now than it ever has been before," he stated.

Strauss said the American people are starved for leadership more than ever before. "The people want honest leadership ... and they want leaders who will talk with them daily," he said.

"The people, not the Republicans, are guilty of electing Richard Nixon President. Because of this we have been found guilty and are now serving a sentence," Strauss said.

Strauss added that the people need to keep several things in mind in the November election. He said people are sick and tired of candidates who over- promise and can't carry out their promises. Candidates should be honest and realistic in their promises and have the courage to face issues, he stressed.

"The people should compare Nixon records with any past president. With his record, we didn't need Watergate," Strauss said.

"If American is in a recession or if we are about to enter one, I hate to think what would have happened to the nation if it had not been for Democratic legislation. We would be in worse shape than we were in 1959," he noted.

Strauss said a Democratic victory in November would set the stage for 1976.

Strauss was a national

Lilbourn man becomes 60th SeMo fatality

Twenty- two persons were injured in nine weekend traffic accidents in the Bootheel area and a Lilbourn man was injured in a traffic accident earlier this month died Saturday, raising traffic fatalities in Southeast Missouri this year to 60, compared with 65 traffic deaths at the same time last year.

Wesley Ervin Strickland, 54, died Saturday in Methodist Hospital at Memphis, Tenn., of injuries received in a traffic accident at 5 a.m. July 13 at the intersection of Route F and Highway 162 at Portageville.

The accident occurred when a southbound car driven by Arthur S. Muse Jr., 16, of Portageville failed to yield the right of way and was struck in the right side by an eastbound pickup truck driven by Strickland.

Gail Cayton, 14, of Portageville, a passenger in the Muse auto, received serious injuries and another passenger, Terry Hunt, 15, of Portageville suffered minor injuries. Muse was not injured.

Strickland was born April 25, 1920 in Clarkton to the late John and Lou Mae Nunn Strickland. He was employed as a mechanic by Twitty Farm Equipment Co. and had lived in Lilbourn for 19 years.

Survivors include his widow, Aline Strickland of Lilbourn; two sons, Gary Strickland of Ponca City, Okla., and Charles Strickland of New Madrid; two daughters, Betty Cagle of Parma and Debra Strickland of the home; four brothers, Clent Strickland of Qulin, Alvin Strickland of Poplar Bluff, Andrew Strickland of St. Louis and Marvin Strickland of Gideon; three sisters, Melissa Fluty of Campbell, Margaret Christine of Michigan and Lillie Mae Hamm of Clarkton; and two grandchildren.

Burial followed in Mounds Park Cemetery near Lilbourn.

An accident at 11:30 p.m. Friday on a gravel road five miles south of Puxico resulted in two minor injuries.

The accident occurred when a pickup truck driven east by Lindsay Van Limbaugh, 19, of Puxico struck loose gravel, went out of control and struck a tree.

WATCHING THE WATERGATE COBRA

A national public opinion survey early this summer indicated that 53% of Americans want the impeachment proceedings in Congress to be televised. A second survey, whose results were released by the Gallup organization in July, showed on the other hand that most Americans — an identical 53% to be exact — think the mass media already is providing "too much coverage" of Watergate.

These survey results illustrate the ambivalence our citizens feel toward Watergate and yet, like a child sitting before an uncurling cobra, we are helplessly entranced by it.

As the nation now awaits the verdict by the House Judiciary Committee on the involvement of the President, however, our fascination and fear over the possible impeachment outcome should not blind us to the larger significance of Watergate. We join other thoughtful commentators in observing that the processes that have uncovered the scandal layer by layer and have now brought us to the feet of Mr. Nixon himself prove the efficacy of our system of government as surely as they prove its vulnerability.

America is one of the few major countries in the world where such a series of events could have become a celebrated national scandal rather than merely a footnote to history. Our free press, independent judicial system, and co-equal legislative branch of government virtually assured that the facts and figures of Watergate would become public knowledge from the moment two years ago when a group of burglars was apprehended by Washington, D. C. police in the Democratic National Headquarters.

We think that, by and large, out citizens themselves have done a rather good job of putting Watergate in perspective. At the annual meeting of the American Association for Public Opinion Research earlier this year, political scientists said that surveys taken during the summers of 1972 and 1973 indicate that "despite the President's embroilment in the most explosive political scandal since Teapot Dome, citizens retained their confidence in the integrity of the political system." They added that Americans see the exposure, investigation, and prosecution in the Watergate cases as "proving that the political system works."

Long after Watergate has at last been buried — and its lessons hopefully well learned — this same system will still be around. And that's something worth cheering about!

So now it's a paperclip shortage.

Steel mills, it seems, have been cutting back on the production of low- grade wire for paper clips in favor of more profitable high- grade steel. So says the president of a company that manufactures a quarter of the world's estimated annual output of 20 billion paperclips. The result is that paper clips have more than doubled in price in the past year -- if you can get them.

This is another blow to bureaucracy, which has already been hit by shortages and rising costs of the paper that paperclips are designed to clip. So far, however, it can be reported that the supply of red tape is as plentiful as ever.

This month all counties will be required to provide food stamps under the program originally started to use up the nation's farm surpluses, Tax Foundation reports.

Also under recent legislation, Congress tied both eligiblity levels and coupon allotments automatically to food price increases, with the Federal government bearing the full cost of the stamps and sharing administrative costs with the states.

By 1976 rising food prices may hike the program's current $3 billion cost to $10 billion annually.

Families of four with earnings as high as $6,800 are eligible for the stamps, used by 13 million persons in January.

MIDEAST GUERRILLAS SPEAK ONLY FOR CHAOS

If the recent horrors at airports in Rome and Athens serve to erase what remains of the aura of romanticism or legitimacy that surrounds the Palestinian guerrillas, some purpose will have been served by those tragic deaths.

The old, established well-known guerrilla groups, such as the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO), denounced and deplored the wanton murder of 35 people at Rome and Athens, and there is no reason to doubt their sincerity.

Yet in the past, the PLO proudly claimed responsibility for acts of terror no less wanton, if not so spectacularly destructive of human life. It set the precedent and the pattern.

Despite a history of terrorism, however, the guerrillas have generally enjoyed a good press in the West.They are the most under of underdogs in the Middle East imbroglio, the forgotten ones, the dedicated fighters for a homelard most of them have never seen. They are the fedayeen — "those who sacrifice themselves."

It has become a truism to say that lasting peace will never come to the Middle East until the claims of the displaced Palestinians are settled. But it is a dangerous fallacy to believe that the guerrillas speak for all Palestinians, or even any significant number of them. They do not even speak for all guerrillas.

In the past decade, some 60 guerrilla splinters have come into existence for shorter or longer periods: the PLO, which likes to think of itself as the parent organization exercising moral if not actual leadership over all the others; the Fatah; the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine; the leftist Democratic Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine; the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine- Central Command; the rabid Black September, and a host of others whose adherents may number no more than a handful of dissidents who have broken away from some other group.

So little have any of them actually accomplished toward the "liberation" of Palestine, so successful has Israel been in combatting their commando operations and rooting out their bases, and so reluctant have been the Palestinians under benevolent Israeli control to assist the fedayeen, that they have been reduced to terrorizing their own people as well as innocent international bystanders. It is a fact that the guerrillas have killed more Palestinian Arabs than they have Israelis. They have effectively squelched an incipient movement to establish a Palestinian nation on the west bank of the Jordan.

It is also a fact that the Arab governments, who have used the Palestinians for their own purposes for 25 years, have killed more guerrillas than has the Israeli army. Hundreds of fedayeen were wiped out by King Hussein of Jordan in his strike against them in September, 1970.

Were Israel to disappear tomorrow, there would not be peace in the Middle East. Palestine would continue to be the cockpit of war as its "liberators" fought with one another for leadership.

It is likely that Syria would take the opportunity to annex more of Palestine, as it annexed the Golan Heights in 1947. Jordan and Egypt could be expected to move in to divide up the rest. Russia, attracted like a shark to blood, would reap what advantages it could from the situation.

The Palestinian problem must be solved, but it will not be solved until the Arabs repudiate the extremists and sit down in good faith at the bargaining table with the Israelis.

IMAGINE SIBERIA AS A TOURIST TRAP

With little fanfare, the inaugural flight of a new weekly service between Washington, D.C., and Moscow took off the other day from Dulles International Airport.

Aboard the IL-62 turbojet, flagship of Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, were American travel writers, legislators and other VIPs invited to sample the tourist attractions of the Soviet Union and to discover first-hand whether the Russians are serious about his business of "detente"— not just on a goverment- to- government level but a people- to- people one.

They apparently are, judging from statements by Aeroflot, which up to now has been restricted to operating only from New York, An official expressed hope that the new Washington-Moscow service would present the opportunity of discovering the "unknown" Soviet Union to a wider segment of the U.S. travel public.

"There is much more to the Soviet Union that American tourists should be aware of," said an Aeroflot spokesman in good old American public-relationsese. "In addition to the cultural, historic and leisure appeal of our large cities such as Moscow, Leningrad, and Kiev, we think Americans will be pleasantly surprised by the subtropical climate and lush, tranquil beauty of our Black Sea Coast."

He went on to describe "fairylike winters with bright sunshine, sparkling snowflakes and dry frost, more bearable than the bone-chilling dampness of winters in the northeastern U.S." Still waiting to be discovered "are ski and winter resorts, which should have a special appeal to active sports enthusiasts."

If you're enthusiastic enough, you can book a round-trip first-class seat for $1,117. Economy fares will range from $836 in the fall and winter to $1,034 during the peak spring and summer months.

To make you even more enthusiastic, Paris, the one stop on the slight, is thrown in as a "bonus."

Tourism, like every other aspect of international dealings, is a two-way street, of course. After all, restrictions on travel by Russians in this country have only been in response to similar restrictions on Americans in Russia.

The Soviets seem to appreciate this fact, and it constitutes a — excuse the word — revolutionary departure from traditional Russian exenophobia.

Said the same Aeroflot official: "We hope that the sight of Americans strolling beside the Moscow River eating blini and Russian visitors eating hot dogs along the banks of the Potomac will be commonplace rather than a rarity."

Yet one wonders if they realize what they could be starting. Russians strolling along the Potomac will absorb a lot more of the American way of life than wieners and buns. And American rubber-neckers in Moscow or Leningrad or elsewhere, with their free and easy manners, will leave as much an impression on the Russians they meet as they will take away with them.

All eyes have been on the SALT nuclear arms limitations talks in Geneva and the peregrinations of Secretary of State Kissinger and His grave deliberations with Kremlim officials.

The real thing to watch for signs of the future shape of U.S.-Soviet relations may actually be the success of this attempt by the Soviet Union to introduce the hot dog lovers to the blini eaters.

GOODBYE SEDAN; HELLO BATTOLINE GASECTRIC

Among other accomplishments in a sweeping energy bill, the U. S. Senate has legislated the standard American sedan out of existence. If the House of Representatives follow suit, the average American automobile will be required by 1984 to deliver at least 20 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The passage of the bill may be symbolic only. Rising prices and declining petroleum supplies may accomplish the same result without congressional help long before 1984.

Would that someone could legislate the internal combustion engine itself out of existence. This polluter and consumer of resource that has too many other valuable uses has clearly seen its day.

Unfortunately, no replacement — neither an electric nor steam - powered car nor anything else — appears as a feasible alternative. Each has serious drawbacks and limitations.

Yet if we can't go all the way from the internal combustion engine to a new kind of power, maybe we can go partway — to some sort of hybrid vehicle which combines the maximum advantages and minimum disadvantages of two different power sources.

The hybrid most usually talked about is a gas- electric car. It's more than being talked about. Students at the University of Illinois, for instance, are in the process of building such a car. Their experimental hybrid has three main features:

— An electric motor operating at various speeds to drive the wheels through a gear train.

— A small internal combustion engine driving an electric generator.

— Storage batteries, with an automatic switching system.

The car is designed for expressway speeds of 65 to 70 miles an hour and a cruising speed of 55. In cruising, the car is powered by electricity from the generator. In starts and other power demands, as well as above cruising speed, the batteries automatically kick in to add energy. Below cruising speed and while stopped for traffic or signals, the batteries are recharging.

Fuel is saved and pollution reduced by using a medium - sized motorcycle engine running at a constant speed for maximum efficiency and minimum pollution.

More than 100 University of Illinois students in the electrical, mechanical and aeronautical engineering departments have been involved from time to time on the project.

Who knows? Maybe if enough people show them the way, Detroit may get involved in something similar one of these years.

RESEARCHERS FIND USE FOR REFUSE

Members of two horticultural research teams from Pennsylvania State University have found a constructive use for discarded anthracite mine refuse banks.

The scientists say that a refuse and nutrient combination will serve as well as an inexpensive substitute for the two million tons of topsoil now used annually in greenhouses.

Properly treated and crushed coal refuse is relatively inexpensive, abundant and can be trucked as far away as New York and Baltimore for less than the cost of soil, according to estimates.

By adding extra light and by balancing moisture levels in the refuse soiless medium, rose yields were increased 60 to 90 per cent above those of flowers grown in a soil mixture with natural light. Estimates of the cost of installing and operating the supplimentary lights in conjunction with the anthractie refuse growing medium indicate that the additional income from the first year alone would finance the initial costs.

More than 800 towering banks of refuse, 900 million tons in all scar the countryside of northeastern Pennsylvania counties. Over the years many of the banks have started to burn, either by spontanous combustion or as a result of trash fires, releasing sulfur gases into the air.

The scientists say the soilless growing medium, combined with techniques to enrich the atmosphere of greenhouses, has potential for production advances that can help Pennsylvania growers compete with the more favorable flower growing climates of California and Florida.

THE LEGACY OF PRICE CONTROLS

The legacy left by price controls is ample proof that our government should never again resort to controls as a means of "helping" the economy.

In August, 1971, when price controls were imposed, the Consumer Price Index was rising at a rate of about 3 percent per year. By 1973, after a year and a half of controls, the official cost of living increase was 3 percent per year. In the early months of 1974 the inflation rate was over 10 percent.

During 1971, the Wholesale Price Index rose by less than 3 percent. During the next two years, the Index rose over 20 percent.

Stock prices have fallen an average of 50 Dow Jones points below their level in August, 1971. From 1967 to 1972, consumer prices rose 25.4 percent, but the dividends on the Standard and Poor's list of 500 stocks rose only 5 percent, and the Dow Jones Industrials declined 4.5 percent.

These facts clearly indicate the futility of price controls. Yet controls do serve one purpose: they distract the public's attention from the primary cause of inflation, government deficit spending. Under the Nixon Administration, the federal debt had increased from less than $370 billion to over $480 billion. Until that debt is reduced, inflation will continue. Price controls will only make the situation worse. HLH

Black Giant Stirs: Political Leaders Around Nation Watch New Black Drive Against Daley Chicago Machine

WASHINGTON — There are seething Babylons in which the Democratic party isn't on speaking terms with itself -- especially within the central cities, particularly with its black followers, says on black labor leader who's determined to "show the party we're too big to fit into its vest pocket."

Home grounds of this black man, 56- year- old Charlie Hayes, executive vice president of the Coalition of Black Trade Unionists, is Chicago. He's launched an intriguing campaign against the powerful Mayor Daley- labor alliance but the news hasn't rippled much out of the city. Some insiders see Hayes and his colleagues as a band of black Don Quixotes. Some see them as downright silly. Some, inside the party and the labor establishment, are just waiting nervously to see what they'll see.

Without drawing any national attention, Hayes unveiled the Committee for a Black Mayor. When we spoke, Hayes, who is the committee chairman, said he has some 35 groups behind him -- though he appears to be acting independently of the sprawling Amalgamated Meat Cutters union of which he is an international vice president. Hayes is an old packinghouse hand.

"We're not in this for kicks," says Hayes. "We're in it to kick out Daley. It's tough. This is different from Tom Bradley's successful (mayoralty) drive in Los Angeles, or Dick Hatcher over in Gary, or Coleman Young in Detroit, or Ken Gibson in Newark and Maynard Jackson in Atlanta. They all became mayors, sure, but they didn't have to buck the country's most powerful, maybe the last, old- fashioned city boss machine. And here the unions are tied right with it.

"So we're rousing the black sleeping giant. After all we are one of the two basic supports of the Illinois Democratic party. We have helped it win governorships -- and we won that state for Jack Kennedy in '60."

Hayes said that long before they confront the Daley machine in the 1975 primaries, they'll consult with black mayors, especially in Los Angeles, Detroit and Atlanta, to learn "how it's done." Sure, adds Hayes, "we can use some advice."

Political realists predict Hayes's committee won't dent the Daley machine. But how much can the committee shake the "entrenched labor- Daley establishment," as Hayes puts it?

And what effect will ripple out of the run? Who knows? One can't even predict who'll be Vice President of the U.S. next year. But lots of black leaders are saying the "sleeping giant" will shake Chicago's politics. Even if Hayes and company merely make a strong showing, it will affect campaigns in such big cities as New York and Philadelphia, for example.

In New York City black political power potentially is enormous. There are those who'll wager the next mayor will be a black -- possibly Percy Sutton, now Democratic president of the borough of Manhattan. After all, much of the New York Democratic party's white community isn't on speaking terms with itself either.

There's this vest pocket theory. Democratic party leaders say the blacks just have no place else to go -- they've demanded Dick Nixon's impeachment, they've called George Wallace "repugnant" and "insulting," and they've been turned off by George McGovern and even Ted Kennedy.

But, retort the blacks, they can always go into the primaries. Or, as does Harlem's uncontested young congressman, Charlie Rangel, they can bargain hard for their votes in Congress. Rangel, a House Judiciaty Committee member, chairs the three- and-a- half year-old 16- member Congressional Black Caucus. He doesn't cross paths much with the Coalition Black Trade Unionists. And he has heard little of Hayes's Committee for a Black Mayor. But he bristles at the vest pocket attitude of the organized labor movement and the House Democrats. I do believe he's waiting only for the end of the impeachment marathon to cut loose on some of labor's "powerhouses."

Rangel doesn't get loud unless he's talking of his personal feud with Turkey over poppy- growing which puts dope pushers all over his home precincts. So he'll take some time out for this personal war against the dope pushers. But soon enough he'll get at the labor establishment especially AFL-CIO vice president Al Shanker, now seeking the American Federation of Teachers' national presidency. Rangel believes Shanker and his big local union haven't done right by New York's black school children.

And then the man from Harlem will tackle the building and construction trade unions, he says. And labor no longer can take for granted that the Black Caucus will be its automatic ally on the Hill, in the Democratic party or in the big cities.

So there are many black sleeping giants. And they watch each other. But not until Hayes announced his Committee for a Black Mayor of Chicago have they watched so carefully. If Richard Daley, oiling as he is, can be taken on, and shaken or beaten, that's the test. They reckon the Democratic party will have to "get with it" and get on speaking terms with the black communities in a hundred cities and congressional districts.

This isn't militant black power, clenched- fist street horseplay, they say. This is sophisticated power- bloc politics.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS

St. Clair Partner Was A CIA Front Man

WASHINGTON — A law partner of President Nixon's impeachment attorney, James St. Clair, was a front man until last year for the Central Intelligence Agency.

Paul F. Hellmuth, the managing partner of St. Clair's Boston law firm, has been associated over the past decade with an industrial security company called Anderson Security Consultants, Inc.

We have now established that the company was a CIA front until it was disbanded last year. Hellmuth was then listed officially as president of the firm.

We first learned of Anderson Security's CIA connections from confidential tape recordings of former presidential aide Charles Colson. He described the company as "wholly owned" by the CIA. Insiders at the CIA, he said, "call it an agency proprietary."

We located two former Anderson Security associates who completely confirmed Colson's charges.

Ostensibly, the firm distributed document shredders, conducted security sweeps and planned surveillance programs for industrial concerns. But behind this facade, Anderson Security also funneled money to support the CIA's clandestine operations.

The former associates told us that mysterious checks, written for large amounts, would frequently arrive at the office of the firm's secretary-treasurer, Virginia attorney L. Lee Bean, who would deposit the money in a local bank and disperse it upon instructions.

The secret instructions often came, say our sources, from James St. Clair's quiet law partner. Some of the mystery money was dispatched to Miami banks and was used allegedly to support the CIA's anti- Castro activities.

Our sources say that the Anderson firm's industrial security business was also a front to hide another CIA activity. One of the firm's primary functions, the sources say, was to shred sensitive documents discarded by defense contractors "so the Russians wouldn't get them."

This is a clear violation of the law. The National Security Act, which established the Central Intelligence Agency, specifically prohibits the agency from engaging in "internal security functions."

Yet for over a decade, Anderson Security employes regularly visited defense contractors to destroy classified papers. They hauled around a portable shredder, mounted on trucks and on a jeep- pulled trailer. Hot documents were dumped into the machines, mixed with water and ground to a pulp.

When the mess dried, it was cut into large, flat cakes and discarded. One real estate developer, affiliated with Anderson Security, wanted to use the super- secret pulp as insulation in the buildings he constructed, but the plan never worked out.

Former officials of the Anderson firm insist it was disbanded over a year ago. But CIA expert John Marks, coauthor of the controversial book, "The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence," who helped us with our investigation, learned that the company had apparently transferred its operations from Springfield, Va., to the Boston area a year ago. We have been unable to trace it further.

We contacted Paul Hellmuth who refused to discuss Anderson Security's links with the CIA. But he insisted to my associate, Joe Spear, that James St. Clair didn't know "the first thing about" the security firm.

Other lawyers close to Hellmuth told us, however, it would "greatly surprise" them if St. Clair were unaware of the activities of his managing partner. The ethics of the profession, said our sources, would demand such disclosure among partners.

At this writing, St. Clair has not responded to our requests for comment. Attorney L. Lee Bean was vacationing in Austria and couldn't be reached. A CIA spokesman informed us the agency would have "no comment."

INSIDE MAN: Former Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., who used to champion the mining industry as chairman of the House Interior Committee, has now turned up on their payroll as a $1,750- a- month lobbyist on the strip- mining bill.

In apparent violation of House rules which allow ex-congressmen on the floor only if they are "not interested in any ... bill pending before Congress," Aspinall has been genially arm- twisting his old pals right in the well of the House to vote against strip-mining controls.

Aspinall's employer, American Metal Climax, has a major stake in strip- mining, and Aspinall has been lining up interviews with his ex-congressional colleagues for mining industry types.

The House leadership, of course, is winking at the illicit lobbying even though it is going on literally under their eyes. As for the leathery, 79-year- old Aspinall, he is as scrappy as ever.

"Sure, I've been on the floor," he said. "But I'm not pinholing any members. I'm for a strip- mining bill that will have ecological protection and will permit strip- mining. After all, nobody ever said Wayne Aspinall wasn't a conservationist."

Actually, that is exactly what his environmentalist opponents have said for years, now more than ever as they sit in the galleries and helplessly watch him at work on the floor below.

Ann Landers

Charming Betsy has obnoxious husband

Dear Ann Landers: What does one do when half of the couple is lovely and the other half is obnoxious?

I'm very fond of a woman who lives near us. Betsy is intelligent, charming and great company. But her husband is a vulgar, foul- mouthed glutton who attacks food and drink as if he had been caged up for months. The man tells filthy stories and monopolizes every conversation.

Recently we had a series of dinner parties. I begged my husband to let me invite them for one evening. I knew Betsy would see the cars in our driveway and realize they had been excluded. My husband said, "Absolutely not."

When I ran into Betsy a few days ago, I could see the hurt look on her face, but I said nothing. Should I have? How do others deal with this problem? -- Across The Way

Dear A.C.: It's theage- old dilemma, "love her, can't stand him." (Sometimes it's the other way around.)

See Betsy in the afternoon and don't be uncomfortable about leaving them off your dinner party guest list. Obviously they HAVE been invited and the husband made a jackass of himself. Once is enough.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I and our 17- year- old daughter are planning a trip to see my aging in- laws. When we reach our destination, we will be staying in a motel for five days.

We don't have much money to spend and have decided to take one double room instead of an extra room for the girl. I told my husband that I want to sleep in the double bed with my daughter and he can use the other bed. He said, "Nothing doing. Edna knows we sleep together." (We have six kids.) My husband claims he is not comfortable unless I am sleeping next to him.

Ann, I know I won't sleep a wink in a double bed with my husband if Edna is in the same room. What should we do? -- Torn

Dear Torn: It's rather sweet that your husband is not comfortable unless you are sleeping next to him, but tell him YOU will be uncomfortable sharing a double bed with him in your daughter's presence.

As a compromise, get a twin- bedded room and ask them to move in a cot. You can occupy the twin bed next to your husband and Edna can sleep on the cot.

Dear Ann Landers: May I say something to "Phone Weary," the person who was furious because she was pestered by telephone solicitors?

I wonder how many people realize that a large percentage of phone solicitors are physically handicapped, or old folks struggling on a pension, or young mother with small children who can't get out of the house? They are just trying to make an honest living.

I'm a widow with two young children. I receive a small check from the government, but with the cost of living so high I must supplement my income by doing this sort of work. It's not pleasant to listen to the abusive language we get when we annoy someone. Phone soliciting isn't fun. We do it because we MUST. Thanks for a chance to speak out. -- Another Blistered Ear Lobe

Dear Lobe: Happy to oblige. It's like the old story about the two men seated across from one another and there's a number written on the middle of the table. "It's a six," insists one observer. "You're crazy," yells the other "It's a nine." It all depends on where you're sitting.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious -- lonely? Welcome to the club. There 's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity."

Jacksons mark 50th anniversary

KEYTESVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. James W. Jackson of Keytesville, located about 30 miles west of Moberly in North central Missouri, former residents of Southeast Missouri, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary July 7 with an afternoon reception from 2 to 5 at the First Baptist Church in Keytesville.

Jackson and the former Frieda S. Powell were married July 3, 1924 at the courthouse in Bloomfield.

Jackson was born in the Acorn Ridge Community and attended Skelton elementary and high school at Essex. He is a graduate of Southeast Missouri University (then called Cape College) and taught school for 44 years in the Missouri counties of Stoddard, Bollinger, Scott, New Madrid, Jefferson and Chariton, in which Keytesville is located.

Mrs. Jackson owned and operated a general store in Cape Girardeau County for 20 years.

The couple purchased land in Keytesville and moved there 12 years ago.

Miss Mauldin bride of Richard Smith

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. — The marriage of Miss Tanya Gaye Mauldin off Corpus Christi and Lt. Richard Michau Smith Jr. of Sikeston, Mo. was solemnized the evening of June 22 at the Protestant Chapel, Naval Air Station, Corpus Christi.

The double- ring ceremony was performed by Capt. L. J. McDonald.

The chapel was decorated with bouquets of white gladioli, mums and greenery. White satin bows and daisies decorated the pews.

Miss Mauldin is the only daughter of Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Tommie S. Mauldin of Corpus Christi and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shurford E. Mauldin of Albemarle, N.C., and Mrs. Sherry McDonald of Summerville, S.C. and the late John A. McDonald.

Lt. Smith is the son of Mrs. David E. Blanton of Sikeston and Richard M. Smith of West Palm Beach, Fla. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hax Smith of Coral Gables, Fla., and Mrs. George McClure Hearne of Poplar Bluff and the late George Hearne.

Before the service, Mrs. A. F. Haas, organist, played the following selections: "Romance" by Rubinstein, "Melody" and The Theme from "Romeo and Juliet" by Tchaikovsky, "Traumeri" by Schumann, The Theme from the Second Movement of Mozart's "Concerto No. 21," and "Morning Has Broken."

The bride entered to the familiar and traditional wedding march from "Lohengrin." Given in marriage by her father, she wore a gown of white polyanza with accents of Venise lace. The scalloped V neckline gave emphasis to the capelet triple tiered bodice. Lace and ribbon accented the empress bodice and edged the tiered ruffles. Venise lace motifs were at vantage points throughtout the full A-line skirt of formal length which in back fell into a chapel length train. The wide flounced hem was edged by Venise lace.

She wore a picture hat with an over-lay of white polyanza with Venise lace, trimmed with yellow rose buds, and her bouquet was of yellow roses, white orchids, tuberoses, and baby's breath.

Her only jewelry was a gold and pearl necklace, a gift of the groom.

Miss Mauldin chose Mrs. Arthur Hobbs of Sikeston, Mo., sister of the groom, as her matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Gregg of Pensacola, Fla., Miss Annie Yamada of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Patricia Meys of Long Island, N.Y. Miss Kate Hobbs, of Sikeston, Mo., niece of the groom, was junior birdesmaid.

The bride's attendants wore floor length dresses of white voile and carried colonial bouquets of starburst chrysanthemums and daisies tied with yellow and white ribbon streamers.

The groom chose his brother, Frank E. Smith of Sikeston, Mo., as his best man. Groomsmen were Lt. Ronald Grojean of Sikeston, LTJG Barry E. Hudspeth of Columbia, Mo.; LTJG James A. Wagoner of San Francisco, Calif., and Michael T. Mauldin of Corpus Christi, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Mauldin was attired in a pale blue floor length dress of ribbed, double knit, and Mrs. Blanton wore a yellow and white silk dress. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Officer's Club. The bride's table was decorated with candelabras trimmed with white daisies and yellow chrysanthemums on either side of the tiered wedding cake which was topped with fresh flowers. The groom's table, overlaid with a yellow cloth, was decorated with yellow, gold and bronze mums. Both cakes were made by Mrs. A. F. Haas.

After a wedding trip to Europe, Lt. and Mrs. Smith will make their home at 800 Military Highway, Kingsville, where Lt. Smith is stationed.

Out- of- town guests for the wedding, other than those in the wedding party, were Mrs. Ronald Grojean and David E. Blanton of Sikeston, Mo.; Miss Carol Malone of Pensacola, Fla.; Mrs. Richard M. Smith Sr. of West Palm Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Steven Hazelrigg, Mrs. Thomas O'Leary, Mrs. Frank Catalano and Mrs. George Cairnes of Kingsville; Mrs. Michael Moore of Bishop; and Miss Janice Carter, Miss Mary Coronis, and Joey Pardu of Houston.

The rehearsal dinner for the bridal party and out- of- town guests was given by Mr. and Mrs. David Blanton of Sikeston on June 21 at the Petroleum Club in Corpus Christi.

A luncheon honoring the bride was given on the day of the wedding by Mrs. Arthur Hobbs of Sikeston.

A perspective on weight control; or 'should Santa Claus reduce?'

By LAURENCE M. HURSH, M.D.
National Dairy Council Consultant

Perspective is a wonderful thing. And it is often introduced or made clear by humor. My thought today is that while weight control is of serious concern to the medical profession, and of continuing fascination for the public, we should maintain a perspective on the problem.

For starters we ought to agree more on who really needs to reduce and who doesn't. As the title of this column asks, "Should Santa Claus Reduce?"

I was totally charmed by this question when I read a recent article in a medical journal titled "Culture, History and Adiposity, Or Should Santa Clause Reduce?" In the article, Dr. Kelly M. West, professor of medicine and continuing education at the University of Oklahoma in Norman, Okla., pointed out that what is considered ideal body weight can and does vary from culture to culture, and from one time period to another. A paper along this line also was presented at the recent annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The Ideal of Thinness

Now, it is a fact that in most of the Western industrialized areas, people profess at least to the ideal of thinness, of leanness. But surely we are not all practicing it, or we wouldn't constantly be inundated as we are by magazines and other media with diet plans.

So why not introduce a little perspective into the situation?

Must we be plagued if we are ten pounds overweight? I certainly think not. The trick should be, rather, to not add still more pounds. And perhaps that will take the discipline of eating a bit less and exercising more. So do it! But let's not talk about it all the time.

A reduction of 500 calories daily will reduce you one pound a week if you maintain the same amount of physical activity.

A diet that results in weight loss of more than two pounds each week is too restrictive and does not encourage long- term use. Too many people lose weight quickly, then put it on again. This is known in weight control circles as the "yo-yo syndrome."

What About Exercise?

Don't be discouraged if you read that you would have to walk for 14 hours to use up one pound of body fat. Instead, why not spread out the exercise? Walking a half hour more than you do now each day would cause you to lose one pound every four weeks or 13 pounds a year. Not bad, eh?

And finally, practice a little control over your behavior. It has a lot more to do with your overweight than you might think. One less cocktail would be a good place to start. Eating more slowly could help you to eat less. Form the habit of eating in one room in the house only. That way you won't associate eating with other activities, like watching televisionl. More on this next week.

Spainhower questions governor's appointments

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Christopher S. Bond is making "an impudent grab for complete control of each of the state's 14 reorganized divisions," state Treasurer James I. Spainhower charged last week.

Spainhower said it appears Bond has interpreted the 1974 reorganization bill in a way that permits him to make complete changes in the membership of boards and commissions at one time.

"My only concern is whether the interest of the people will be upheld," Spainhower said. "The governor may be right when he says state government will now be run more smoothly and with less time and effort. But he has apparently forgotten, or never learned, that the purpose of government in this country is not the same as that of big business."

The Treasurer called upon Bond to withdraw all appointments to state boards made to replace persons whose terms had not expired or who had not resigned. "I am not questioning the quality of the appointments made by the governor, nor am I questioning his judgment in matters which may come before these bodies should he try to assert his desire upon his appointees," Spainhower added.

By appointing all members to these major commissions and boards at one time, Bond is bringing politics back into areas where it has no place, Spainhower said. Bond is challenging a firmly established tradition of staggering appointments to major governmental bodies over several years.

Spainhower said Bond's legal right to make these appointments is a "matter for possible judicial determination. Be that as it may, I believe such action, whether or not technically legal, is in clear violation of a long and firmly established principle."

Spainhower said he had no plans for legal action at this time.

Responding in a prepared statement, Bond said that Spainhower's attack "merely represents another line of partisan attack."

"Appointments by the governor of new state department heads, including boards and commissions, was mandated by the people of Missouri when they overwhelmingly voted for reorganization two years ago," Bond said.

Bond's press aide, Hugh Sprague, said the governor is relying on a June 10 Missouri attorney General's opinion to support his power of making appointments at one time.

That opinion said commissions and board which have been retained under reorganization went out of existence on July 1 when reorganization legislation became effective. Then they came back into existence when they were included in the new reorganization plans. These departments in effect "succeeded themselves", but their members were not automatically retained.

According to the opinion, if the drafters of the 1972 reorganization constitutional amendment had desired retention of members of the commissions and boards, they would have specifically said so.

The opinion continued, "We believe it was the intent of reorganization to allow the governor greater flexibility in selecting employes responsive to him. But as a safeguard against an excessive accumulation of power in the office of the governor, the numbers of appointments requiring the advice and consent of the Senate was increased."

Sprague said the governor had not replaced all board and commission members appointed by previous administrations. For instance, four of six highway commissioners have been retained.

"However, in some cases we wanted new blood who would accept new ideas," Sprague added.

In a report on his first full year as Missouri's ombudsman, Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps said his office has handled almost 800 complaints and requests for information.

Most complaints have been about dissatisfactory agency decisions, Phelps said.

The lieutenant governor said he has had the full cooperation of all state officials, except the University of Missouri board of curators, in processing these complaints. The curators have refused to open their meetings to the public in accordance with 1974 open meetings legislation, but other officials have been anxious to learn about personal and proceedural failures in the state's government.

Phelps said the ombudsman role of his office had been accomplished cheaply because he has used 12 volunteer college interns during the school year. Three interns have been retained this summer.

His staff also has strengthened by the recent addition of Carl Flood, brother of former St. Louis Cardinal center fielder Curt Flood, Phelps said. An inmate of the Missouri State Penitentiary, Flood was convicted of a 1968 armed robbery.

Signers must be registered

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Signers of initiative petitions must be registered voters, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled today.

In the 6-1 decision favoring the position of Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick, the high court reversed the ruling of Cole County Circuit Court Judge James T. Riley in a case involving a petition to place a constitutional amendment on the ballot increasing the revenue for the state conservation commission.

Although Kirkpatrick had refused to certify petitions without signatures of registered voters on the grounds of the statewide voter registration law passed last year, the court said that law "has no application to..the question presented in this case," and refused to consider it.

Basing its decision on provisions of the constitution describing voter qualifications and who can sign petitions, the court said a legal voter, which one must be to sign petitions, is a voter who meets constitutionally proscribed requirements and who has registered to vote.

"The laws of this state now make registration and imperative prerequisite to the right of a qualified voter to vote," the court said. "It follows from this that the signature of a person qualified but not registered to vote is not acceptable on an initiative petition...because he is not at the time legally entitled to vote...".

Judge Robert E. Seiler, who filed the only dissenting opinion, contended the majority opinion violates a cardinal rule "that constitutional provisions relating to initiative and referendume are to be given a liberal construction to effectuate the policy adopted by the people— namely that they solemnly reserve unto themselves the power to initiative laws and constitutional amendments."

Seiler said there is no explicit provision in the constitution requiring petition signers to be registered voters.

"Registration has nothing to do with initiative and referendum," Seiler said. "Registration is a type of police regulation."

He also pointed out that as a result of the majority decision, determination of who can sign a petition will change every time the legislature changes voter registration laws.

The secretary of state's office said the decision will have no effect on its certification of petitions to place campaign finance reform and the repeal of the Sunday Blue Law on the November ballot.

Beaudean mound star

Rotary shut-out Hart's Bread 10-0, Malone & Hyde downed Collin's Construction 11-5, then Sikeston Standard defeated 15-6 and Malone & Hyde edged Flower Basket 10-6 in Musial League week-end action.

Beaudean starred in Rotary's three- hit shut out, winning over Chasteen. Braden led Rotary's hitting attack with a three- for- three plate performance, including one double. Close behind was McGill showing a two- for- two at the plate with one two-base hit. Beaudean and Beavers also powered doubles, helping rack up Rotary's 10 runs. Gwinn cracked a triple for one of Hart's three hits.

Larry Childers won the mound for Malone & Hyde in their match with Collins Construction. Phillip Stinnett and Alcock cracked a double each, but their effort and the five runs in the fifth inning were not enough to overpower Malone & Hyde. Bobby Stinnett was tagged with that loss.

Moore was Sikeston Standard's star in their game against Hart's Bread. He took the mound win, lead hitting with four and powered a two- base hit for the victory. Coffey, Pearson and Roberts also cracked doubles for Sikeston Standard and Dockins, Chasteen and Statler managed doubles for Hart's Bread. Gwinn took the loss.

Jeff Brasherr also made a good all- around performance for Malone & Hyde. He won the pitching duel against McClellan, and powered one homer and a double, sharing the hitting lead with Larry Childrers. Howard powered two doubles and McClellan managed one two- base hit for Flower Basket.

If you want to make a child happy give him a packet of gourd seeds to plant. The seeds are large and easy to handle — like pumpkin seeds — and they like to be planted directly into the garden — after all danger of frost. Once in the ground, they germinate quickly and grow at the rate of several inches a day.

Although ornamental gourds do grow as vines and need plenty of room, they can be grown up a chain-link-fence, trellis or chicken wire to save space, and they need a good sunny location.

Male and female flowers grow on the same plant. You can tell the females by the immature baby gourd at the base of each flower. When it is pollinated by an insect carrying pollen from the male flower, the baby gourd will then grow quite fast.

During late summer and fall the vines produce hard, odd-shaped gourds. Some look like pears and oranges. Others resome will be warted or striped.

The gourds should be picked with a short piece of stem intact, then dried and varnished to make long lasting decorations. Children will also love to play with the many different shapes, creating animals and birds by sticking legs and heads on them.

Another trick, while the gourds are half-grown is to scratch your child's name on the skin. Where the skin is scratched the gourd will form a scab, and as it grows your child's name will be permanently displayed, growing bigger

TRCC budget examined

POPLAR BLUFF — Trustees of Three Rivers Community College met Wednesday night to examine a preliminary budget for 1974-75, which will be revised for final presentation and adoption at the August meeting.

They also examined a year- end summary for 1973-74 which will be audited. The summary showed minor variation in both income and expenditure from the original budget.

Highlights of the summary indicate a reduction of income from budgeted tuition and registration fees of approximately $7,200 and an increase in income for student financial aids in excess of $10,000. Total income was approximately $10,000 in excess of the budgeted amounts. On the expenditures side, the major variation from the budget was authorized additional expenditures of approximately $5,000 for capital outlay and $1,800 for student aids. Total expenditures were approximately $66,000 less than the budgeted amount.

Three new persons were employed for the staff and faculty. All were replacements rather than additions.

Ward Moore of Poplar Bluff, was reemployed as director of Public Information Services. Moore, former wire editor for the St. Louis Post- Dispatch, had been news media director for the college for several years but resigned in 1973 so that he and Mrs. Moore could travel extensively in Europe.

John Gregor, part- time instructor in developmental mathematics, was employed to instruct at the student services center which provides highly specialized services to selected students. Mrs. Gregor is employed by the Poplar Bluff Public Schools.

Miss Teresa Pearson was employed as secretary in the Learning Resources Center (library). She replaces Mrs. Maria Van Ella who was reassigned as secretary to Orville Krauss, career education counselor and student placement officer.

Title 1 services to be continued to private schools

JEFFERSON CITY — For the coming year, at least, Missouri will continue to provide Title I instructional services to private and parochial school students, but the State Board of Education will insist that the final constitutionality of the practice be determined.

The state board's action at its July 15-16 meeting follows the United States Supreme Court decision on June 10 of the much publicized Missouri church- state case, Barrera vs. Wheeler.

During the past school year, Title I paid teachers have been used in non- public schools during the regular school day under an order issued by the U.S. District Court.

Last year, Missouri received about $25 million in federal Title I funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which was designed to provide support for educationally disadvantaged children. Local school districts employed 3,292 Title I teachers to serve 63,934 public school children. In the nonpublic schools 171 Title I teachers served 4,018 students.

In its June 10 decision, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that Missouri must provide comparable but not identical Title I services to nonpublic school students. The Court further stated, however, that Missouri's constitutional (stateschool spending proscriptions regarding the use of public funds for nonpublic schools were not to be preempted. The Supreme Court noted that the question of whether federal funds are public funds has not been resolved under Missouri law. The case was then remanded by the Supreme Court to the United States District Court in Kansas City.

In regard to this Supreme Court ruling, the State Board of Education adopted a three-part resolution in which it expressed its strong conviction that Title I federal funds are public funds subject to Missouri law and ordered Commissioner Arthur L. Mallory to seek a final settlement of the issue as quickly as possible. In all probability this means, eventually, a decision by the Missouri Supreme Court.

As adopted, the resolution says: "... be it resolved by the Missouri State Board of Education that a transition period be provided during the 1974-75 school year to permit an orderly adjustment in Title I, ESEA, programs by continuing the use of Title I paid teachers in nonpublic schools during the regular school day to provide instructional services on the same basis as those provided in public schools, in accordance with guidelines developed pursuant to the Injunction and Judgment issued by the U.S. district Court on May 9, 1973;

"Be it further resolved that the State Board of Education instruct its attorney to seek a resolution, through the state courts, of the question of whether Missouri law prohibits or does not prohibit the use of Title I funds for on- the-premises private school instruction, and that the U.S. District Court be asked to assist, in any way possible, all interested parties in obtaining an early answer in the state courts; and

"Be it further resolved that the staff of the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education be directed to develop a proposed state plan for the administration of Title I, ESEA, services to eligible nonpublic schoolchildren by local educational agencies that would meet the comparable, but not necessarily identical, services requirement of the Act for consideration of the State Board of Education at their September 1974 meeting."

Following the reorganization of state government, which became effective July 1, this was the first full business session of the new State Board of Education appointed by Gov. Christopher Bond.

Mrs. Eleanor B. Griffith of Excelsior Springs was elected board president. Zack F. Bettis of St. Louis, was elected vice-president.

Other members of the board are Dale M. Thompson of Kansas City; Dr. R. Jerome Williams of St. Louis; Myron Woolever of Unionville; and Nolan R. Hutcheson of Houston.

Another member of the board, James B. Tatum of Anderson, just appointed by Gov. Bond, resigned his appointment prior to the meeting, stating that he felt obligated to continue his long-standing association with the community college movement. He now serves as a trustee of Crowder College.

Tatum's resignation leaves two vacancies on the State Board of Education.

The next meeting of the board has been set for Aug. 5 in Jefferson City.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Once as he was teaching in the synagogue, a man possessed by a demon began shouting at Jesus, "Go away! We want nothing to do with you, Jesus from Nazareth. You have come to destroy us. I know who you are — the Holy Son of God." Jesus cut him short. "Be silent!" he told the demon. "Come out!" The demon threw the man to the floor as the crowd watched.

THE RYATTS by Jack Elrod

BEATLE BAILEY by Mort Walker

What's the law?

The case of the congenial spot

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Pamalot was a quiet and peaceful little residential town and its officials and inhabitants wanted to keep it that way. In fact, if they could have, they would have prohibited it from raining until after sundown, required the morning fog to disappear by 8 a.m., set a legal limit to the snowfall, forbid July and August from becoming too hot, and made it a crime for winter to arrive before December and to leave by March the second on the dot.

Unable to pass such desirable legal laws, however, the officials passed the only law they could to preserve their congenial little spot. They zoned the entire town as a residential district.

"You can't make a whole town residential," protested Mr. Wimple. "I was going to put up a couple of stores at the main intersection. Certainly, to impose solitary refinement upon everybody can't be legal."

"We don't need any stores," retorted the officials. "There are plenty of them in the shopping center just a few miles away. What we need is to preserve the blinking of lightning bugs and not neon lights."

Intent upon putting up his stores, Mr. Wimple attacked the validity of the zoning regulation in court.

IF YOUWERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Mr. Wimple to put up his stores by knocking down the zoning regulation?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the reasonableness of zoning ordinances must be judged by the circumstances of each particular case. In this case, concluded the judge, there was nothing arbitrary or unreasonable in the town preserving its residential character where the business and industrial needs of its inhabitants were supplied by other accessible areas in the community at large.

'Gypsy' to open 1 week engagement in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS — The London West End production of Angela Lansbury in "Gypsy," which premiered May 29 at Piccadilly Theatre in London and has established itself as one of the most successful American musical comedies in London's stage history, will be presented for a one- week engagment at Municipal Opera beginning Monday evening.

The entire current company starring Miss Lansbury will open at the Winter Garden Theatre on Broadway Sept. 15.

Seats are still available for all performances and may be purchased at the Forest Park box office daily and Sundays from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. and at all Municipal Opera branch ticket offices.

Suggested by the memoirs of the late Gypsy Rose Lee, the book "Gypsy" was written by Arthur Laurents.

Laurents is repeating his London assignment as director of the well- received "Gypsy."

Angela Lansbury, a three-time Academy Award nominee for her performance in "Gaslight," "The Picture of Dorian Gray" and "The Manchurian Candidate," won her first Tony Award (and the New York Drama Critics' Award) for her memorable portrayal of the musical comedy "Mame." Her distinguished performance in the musical version of "The Madwoman of Chaillot" won for her, a second prized Tony Award. Prior to ther widely-acclaimed British stage role of Mama Rose in "Gypsy," Miss Lansbury made her sole London state appearance in 1972 with Dame Peggy Ashcroft in the Royal Shakespeare company's production of Edward Albee's "All Over."

Hailed by the British press corps as "the most exciting thing to have happened in London since V-E Day," Angela Lansbury's "Gypsy" was sold out after it opened last May until it closed March 2.

Miss Lansbury was voted Best Actress of 1973 by the London Theatre Critics Plays and Players Awards. It is the first time that this award has been given to an actress in a musical in London.

Featured with Miss Lansbury in "Gypsy" will be Zan Charisse, Rex Robbins, Mary Louise Wilson and Bonnie Langford.

8 testify against rate hike

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP)—Eight witnesses testified against a proposed rate increase requested by the Laclede Gas Co. during a hearing conducted by the Missouri Public Service Commission here Thursday.

The increase is to raise $12 million annually in additional revenue in Laclede's service area, including an estimated $130,000 in the Poplar Bluff area which is served by Laclede's subsidiary, Missouri Natural Gas.

Former Mayor Bernard Wheetley told the commission that residents of an area near Poplar Bluff but served by another gas utility paid about 30 per cent less for service. He said an increase should not be allowed until all gass rates were equalized.

Two business representatives, John W. Sisson of the Rowe Furniture Co. plant, and David Strand, production support manager of the Reinell Boat Co., said their firms would lose money because of the increase in gas rates.

Commissioner Willard Reine said the two-hour session was an "outstanding" hearing.

Workers get $860,000 in back pay

KANSAS CITY — Activities of the U. S. Labor Department's Employment Standards Administration (ESA) resulted in the restoration of $861,683 to 4,422 Missourians who had been underpaid under various federal statutes, the U.S. Labor Department in Kansas City announced Friday.

Doyle I. Loveridge, who heads ESA in a four- state region which includes Missouri, said compliance officers turned up a total of $1,371, 296 owed to 7,158 Missourians in the fiscal year that ended June 30.

More than half the restored pay, $449,039, was in unpaid overtime wages, which went to 3,081 workers. Of those who were paid less than the legal minimum wage, 2,154 got $183,635. The basic minimum wage is $2 an hour, though for some jobs the floor is $1.90.

The difference between amounts of back pay found due, and that restored, while large, may diminish in the near future, Loveridge said.

Part of it is represented by cases still in the courts, and much of it is uncollectable for various reasons, including insolvency of employers.

But Loveridge said the recent amendments to the act give the department the right to sue for double the back wages due, which it could not do before. Several such suits have been filed, he said, and he expects this action to increase voluntary back wage payments.

Back pay totaling $131,453 was restored to 321 workers, most of them women, under the Equal Pay Act, which requires equal pay for substantially equal work, regardless of sex.

Under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, Loveridge said $46,877 was restored to 10 workers. That law prohibits discrimination in pay, hiring, promotion, or otherwise, against workers between 40 and 65 years of age.

And four workers got back $714 which had been withheld by garnishment actions made illegal by the Consumer Credit Protection Act, which limits the amount of a worker's disposable income which may be garnished.

Labor department compliance officers found 102 children employed illegally under the child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Loveridge pointed out that the newly revised child labor provisions now permit levying a $1,000 civil penalty for each violation.

Over the four- state region administered from Kansas City, the Labor Department supervised return of $2,315,012 to 9,949 underpaid workers, Loveridge said.

Most income restoration is voluntary, Loveridge said. However, a variety of court actions is possible to recover back pay when employers refuse to pay it.

Prior to the recent amendment giving the department the right to sue for double the amount due, the principal legal procedure was to seek a U.S. district Court injunction, barring violation of the act, and ordering payment of wages withheld.

Regional Solicitor of Labor T. A.Houch Jr., the head of the department's legal arm in Kansas City, said his lawyers participated in the recovery of $528,906 in the recently ended fiscal year.

They filed 49 court actions, obtained 42 decisions, and at year's end, had 54 suits pending.

Wage- Hour Division area offices are located in both Kansas City and St. Louis, and compliance officers are stationed in other cities. All offices are listed in the telephone book under U. S. Government.

Hearnes receives congratulations

Blanton greets speaker

C. L. Blanton Jr., left, publisher of The Daily Standard, greets Robert Strauss, right, of Washington, D. C., who was guest speaker for the Democratic fund-raising and Hearnes birthday dinner Saturday night at Ramada Inn. Others, from left, are James Kirkpatrick, Missouri secretary of state, Mrs. Thomas Eagleton and Sen. Stuart Symington.

Former governor, wife honored by 750 people

"I have seen Warren Hearnes in the role of leadership ... I have seen him lead and build ... if it hadn't been for him I would not be chairman of the Democratic National Committee," Robert Strauss of Washington, D.C., asserted Saturday night before approximately 750 people who attended a Democratic fund- raising dinner jointly honoring the birthdays of former Gov. and Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes of Charleston at Ramada Inn.

This was the 10th annual joint birthday party for the ex- governor and his wife who both celebrate birthdays on July 24.

Strauss remarked that two years ago people were saying that the Democratic Party was finished. "They were wrong. The Democratic Party, nationally, is more united now than it ever has been before," he stated.

Strauss said the American people are starved for leadership more than ever before. "The people want honest leadership ... and they want leaders who will talk with them daily," he said.

"The people, not the Republicans, are guilty of electing Richard Nixon President. Because of this we have been found guilty and are now serving a sentence," Strauss said.

Strauss added that the people need to keep several things in mind in the November election. He said people are sick and tired of candidates who over- promise and can't carry out their promises. Candidates should be honest and realistic in their promises and have the courage to face issues, he stressed.

"The people should compare Nixon records with any past president. With his record, we didn't need Watergate," Strauss said.

"If American is in a recession or if we are about to enter one, I hate to think what would have happened to the nation if it had not been for Democratic legislation. We would be in worse shape than we were in 1959," he noted.

Strauss said a Democratic victory in November would set the stage for 1976.

Fighting rages after cease-fire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim told the United Nations Security Council today that "fighting is still going on" in Cyprus after the deadline for a cease-fire that had been accepted by Greece and Turkey.

Waldheim said Turkish planes had bombarded the Nicosia airport after the truce deadline and that a British soldier was wounded by a bomb that hit a U.N. installation.

One high U.N. official said the raid occurred about an hour after the truce was to have started.

In another development, the Greek Cypriot radio claimed that a hotel was bombed by the Turks and 21 foreign tourists killed. The location of the hotel was not given in the broadcast, but it was believed to be in southern Cyprus.

There was no confirmation of the bombing and it was not known whether the reported incident occurred after the truce deadline.

Three hours before the deadline, Turkey was reported flying in fresh troops, and two hours later the armed forces' general staff in Ankara indicated that some post-truce bombing might occur.

At the 5 p.m. — 10 a.m. EDT — deadline, monitors in Beirut, Lebanon, heard the Greek Cypriot radio broadcast orders for the Greek Cypriots to stop shooting.

Earlier in the day both Greece and Turkey announced their forces on Cyprus would observe the United Nationssponsored cease-fire. And in London Foreign Secretary James Callaghan announced the two countries have agreed to meet with Britain in Geneva to discuss a new Cyprus peace settlement.

The Turkish general staff in Ankara claimed Greek Cypriots were slaughtering Turkish Cypriots in the areas of Paphos in the western part of the island and in Lefka in the north.

The General Staff said that unless this stopped, the Turkish Air Force would bomb the areas heavily.

An Associated Press dispatch from Nicosia received just before the 10 a.m. deadline reported that massive Turkish reinforcements had been landed on the beaches of northern Cyprus today. It reported that paratroopers were brought in by at least 12 Turkish C47s, and at least 30 helicopters ferried troops from landing vessels.

The dispatch went through Greek Cypriot censorship before being transmitted, and it did not say what time the reinforcements had arrived.

Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from the northern port of Kyrenia, 45 miles from Turkey and 10 miles from Nicosia, that heavy fighting was going on three hours before the ceasefire was to begin.

Jensen, who was later captured by the Turks along with two other American correspondents, said Turkish jets were bombing and strafing Greek Cypriot positions as both sides fought to improve their positions.

South of Kyrenia, Greek Cypriot artillery shells burst along the top of mountains where Turkish troops had dug in.

AP photographer Paul Roque returned to Nicosia from Kyrenia with the report that he saw two Turkish destroyers bombarding the port city.

Burglars take church pulpit over weekend

Burglars took a gun, clothing, cigarette lighters and a church pulpit lectern over the weekend, according to police.

Burglars walked into the open sanctuary of Bethel Baptist Church, 510 E. Center St., between 9 and 9:30 a.m. Sunday and left with the lectern and a table.

The front door was unlocked, police said. No value was placed on the stolen items.

Thieves crawled through a kitchen window into the O. M. Brake home, 107 N. West St., between 7 and 8 p.m. Saturday while the family was in the front yard, police said.

A 20 gauge shotgun, valued at $40, $12 in cash and a watch worth $25 were reported taken.

Glaud Plunk of Matthews told police his car was broken into between 4 and 7 p.m. Saturday while it was parked at Bootheel Lounge, 504 N. Main St.

Plunk said some men's and women's clothing was taken. He did not know the value of the clothing, he said.

R. E. Ross of Oran told police someone broke into his concession stand at the Farmer's Market, 889 W. Malone Ave., between July 13 and Friday.

He said 12 cigarette lighters, five cans of lighter fluid, five or six pounds of ground beef and one pound of pepper were stolen.

Girl hit, injured on Murray Lane

Kelly Kage, 4 - year - old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kage, 418 Coleman St., was struck by a car and injured at 4:45 p.m. Friday while walking along West Murray Lane.

Police said the girl apparently darted in front of the car near the Frisco railroad tracks as she tried to cross the road to get to some friends.

She was admitted to Missouri Delta Community Hospital and kept overnight for observation.

The woman driving the car took the girl home, then left.

Police said she identified herself as Georgia Fitzgibbons, 807B W. Gladys St. However, police said they tried to locate the woman, but could find neither the woman nor the address.

Girl saved at swimming pool

Gloria Motton, 9, of 211 Fuchs St., was pulled from the Jaycee Swimming Pool about 3:30 p.m. Sunday after nearly drowning.

Lifeguard Brad Gilliland, 317 Hardin St., revived the girl with mouth- to- mouth resuscitation.

She was admitted to Missouri Delta Community Hospital and kept overnight for observation. She was still in the hospital this morning.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Earlie Motton.

Hospital may have to lease ambulance

Missouri Delta Community Hospital may be forced to lease an ambulance for a short time this summer to ensure ambulance service to the area.

The hospital was scheduled to receive the first of its four ambulances on July 1. But product shortages have resulted in delays, and hospital Administrator Harold Jones said today the first ambulance will not arrive for at least seven weeks.

He spoke at a meeting of representatives of the hospital, city of Sikeston and Scott and New Madrid counties.

Welsh Funeral Home, which has been providing ambulance service, is scheduled to get a new hearse about Aug. 1 and is using its ambulance as a trade-in.

Welsh Funeral Home has been providing most of the ambulance service in the Sikeston area for several years.

A state law has almost ended the practice of funeral directors providing ambulance service.

The law now requires ambulances to meet certain specifications and requires two trained personnel be in the ambulance during all runs. Funeral homes could not absorb the extra costs, and the hospital agreed to take over the management of the ambulance service.

Those at the meeting decided to lease the ambulance Welsh planned to trade in for $200 a month and 10 cents a mile. The lease, tentatively worked out with the dealer this morning by telephone, would require the hospital to buy the ambulance and then for the dealer to buy it back when the new ambulances arrive.

The reason for the dealer selling the ambulance, and then buying it back, is that by selling it he is relieved of liability for the short time the ambulance will be used.

Jones said the new ambulances were numbers 37, 38 43 and 44 on a state list of 50 new ambulances to be delivered this year. Because of delays, only 17 had been delivered as of last Thursday.

Two ambulances were purchased by Sikeston, with the Jaycees paying the $7,000 bill, and Scott and New Madrid counties each purchased one.

The ambulances will be staffed by hospital personnel who have taken an 81-hour training course conducted by the R-6 School District.

Jones said the hospital has no funds to pay for the operation, and that those funds will come from ambulance fees. Any deficits will be made up on a pro-rata basis by the counties and Sikeston.

Jones said ambulance fees would start at $25 and go up on a basis of miles and time.

The radios for the ambulances are on order, Jones said, and the radio tower has already arrived.

Lilbourn man becomes 60th SeMo fatality

Twenty- two persons were injured in nine weekend traffic accidents in the Bootheel area and a Lilbourn man was injured in a traffic accident earlier this month died Saturday, raising traffic fatalities in Southeast Missouri this year to 60, compared with 65 traffic deaths at the same time last year.

Wesley Ervin Strickland, 54, died Saturday in Methodist Hospital at Memphis, Tenn., of injuries received in a traffic accident at 5 a.m. July 13 at the intersection of Route F and Highway 162 at Portageville.

The accident occurred when a southbound car driven by Arthur S. Muse Jr., 16, of Portageville failed to yield the right of way and was struck in the right side by an eastbound pickup truck driven by Strickland.

Gail Cayton, 14, of Portageville, a passenger in the Muse auto, received serious injuries and another passenger, Terry Hunt, 15, of Portageville suffered minor injuries. Muse was not injured.

Strickland was born April 25, 1920 in Clarkton to the late John and Lou Mae Nunn Strickland. He was employed as a mechanic by Twitty Farm Equipment Co. and had lived in Lilbourn for 19 years.

Survivors include his widow, Aline Strickland of Lilbourn; two sons, Gary Strickland of Ponca City, Okla., and Charles Strickland of New Madrid; two daughters, Betty Cagle of Parma and Debra Strickland of the home; four brothers, Clent Strickland of Qulin, Alvin Strickland of Poplar Bluff, Andrew Strickland of St. Louis and Marvin Strickland of Gideon; three sisters. Melissa Fluty of Campbell, Margaret Christine of Michigan and Lillie Mae Hamm of Clarkton; and two grandchildren.

Services were conducted at 2 p.m. today in Ponder Funeral Home by the Rev. Marion Gipson of Dexter.

Burial followed in Mounds Park Cemetery near Lilbourn.

An accident at 11:30 p.m. Friday on a gravel road five miles south of Puxico resulted in two minor injuries.

The accident occurred when a pickup truck driven east by Lindsay Van Limbaugh, 19, of Puxico struck loose gravel, went out of control and struck a tree.

Limbaugh and a passenger, Dennis Taylor, 18, of Puxico were taken to

WATCHING THE WATERGATE COBRA

A national public opinion survey early this summer indicated that 53% of Americans want the impeachment proceedings in Congress to be televised. A second survey, whose results were released by the Gallup organization in July, showed on the other hand that most Americans — an identical 53% to be exact — think the mass media already is providing "too much coverage" of Watergate.

These survey results illustrate the ambivalence our citizens feel toward Watergate and yet, like a child sitting before an uncurling cobra, we are helplessly entranced by it.

As the nation now awaits the verdict by the House Judiciary Committee on the involvement of the President, however, our fascination and fear over the possible impeachment outcome should not blind us to the larger significance of Watergate. We join other thoughtful commentators in observing that the processes that have uncovered the scandal layer by layer and have now brought us to the feet of Mr. Nixon himself prove the efficacy of our system of government as surely as they prove its vulnerability.

America is one of the few major countries in the world where such a series of events could have become a celebrated national scandal rather than merely a footnote to history. Our free press, independent judicial system, and co-equal legislative branch of government virtually assured that the facts and figures of Watergate would become public knowledge from the moment two years ago when a group of burglars was apprehended by Washington, D. C. police in the Democratic National Headquarters.

We think that, by and large, out citizens themselves have done a rather good job of putting Watergate in perspective. At the annual meeting of the American Association for Public Opinion Research earlier this year, political scientists said that surveys taken during the summers of 1972 and 1973 indicate that "despite the President's embroilment in the most explosive political scandal since Teapot Dome, citizens retained their confidence in the integrity of the political system." They added that Americans see the exposure, investigation, and prosecution in the Watergate cases as "proving that the political system works."

Long after Watergate has at last been buried — and its lessons hopefully well learned — this same system will still be around. And that's something worth cheering about!

So now it's a paperclip shortage.

Steel mills, it seems, have been cutting back on the production of low- grade wire for paper clips in favor of more profitable high- grade steel. So says the president of a company that manufactures a quarter of the world's estimated annual output of 20 billion paperclips. The result is that paper clips have more than doubled in price in the past year -- if you can get them.

This is another blow to bureaucracy, which has already been hit by shortages and rising costs of the paper that paperclips are designed to clip. So far, however, it can be reported that the supply of red tape is as plentiful as ever.

This month all counties will be required to provide food stamps under the program originally started to use up the nation's farm surpluses, Tax Foundation reports.

Also under recent legislation, Congress tied both eligiblity levels and coupon allotments automatically to food price increases, with the Federal government bearing the full cost of the stamps and sharing administrative costs with the states.

By 1976 rising food prices may hike the program's current $3 billion cost to $10 billion annually.

Families of four with earnings as high as $6,800 are eligible for the stamps, used by 13 million persons in January.

MIDEAST GUERRILLAS SPEAK ONLY FOR CHAOS

If the recent horrors at airports in Rome and Athens serve to erase what remains of the aura of romanticism or legitimacy that surrounds the Palestinian guerrillas, some purpose will have been served by those tragic deaths.

The old, established well-known guerrilla groups, such as the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO), denounced and deplored the wanton murder of 35 people at Rome and Athens, and there is no reason to doubt their sincerity.

Yet in the past, the PLO proudly claimed responsibility for acts of terror no less wanton, if not so spectacularly destructive of human life. It set the precedent and the pattern.

Despite a history of terrorism, however, the guerrillas have generally enjoyed a good press in the West.They are the most under of underdogs in the Middle East imbroglio, the forgotten ones, the dedicated fighters for a homelard most of them have never seen. They are the fedayeen — "those who sacrifice themselves."

It has become a truism to say that lasting peace will never come to the Middle East until the claims of the displaced Palestinians are settled. But it is a dangerous fallacy to believe that the guerrillas speak for all Palestinians, or even any significant number of them. They do not even speak for all guerrillas.

In the past decade, some 60 guerrilla splinters have come into existence for shorter or longer periods: the PLO, which likes to think of itself as the parent organization exercising moral if not actual leadership over all the others; the Fatah; the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine; the leftist Democratic Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine; the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine- Central Command; the rabid Black September, and a host of others whose adherents may number no more than a handful of dissidents who have broken away from some other group.

So little have any of them actually accomplished toward the "liberation" of Palestine, so successful has Israel been in combatting their commando operations and rooting out their bases, and so reluctant have been the Palestinians under benevolent Israeli control to assist the fedayeen, that they have been reduced to terrorizing their own people as well as innocent international bystanders. It is a fact that the guerrillas have killed more Palestinian Arabs than they have Israelis. They have effectively squelched an incipient movement to establish a Palestinian nation on the west bank of the Jordan.

It is also a fact that the Arab governments, who have used the Palestinians for their own purposes for 25 years, have killed more guerrillas than has the Israeli army. Hundreds of fedayeen were wiped out by King Hussein of Jordan in his strike against them in September, 1970.

Were Israel to disappear tomorrow, there would not be peace in the Middle East. Palestine would continue to be the cockpit of war as its "liberators" fought with one another for leadership.

It is likely that Syria would take the opportunity to annex more of Palestine, as it annexed the Golan Heights in 1947. Jordan and Egypt could be expected to move in to divide up the rest. Russia, attracted like a shark to blood, would reap what advantages it could from the situation.

The Palestinian problem must be solved, but it will not be solved until the Arabs repudiate the extremists and sit down in good faith at the bargaining table with the Israelis.

OPPORTUNIST

A truck driver, hauling clay for a fill, backed his truck too far over the dump grade. The weight of the load being dumped lifted the front end of the truck several feet off the ground.

"Now, what are you going to do?" an associate asked.

The driver eased out of the cab and said, "I think: I'll grease it — I'll never get a better chance."

IMAGINE SIBERIA AS A TOURIST TRAP

With little fanfare, the inaugural flight of a new weekly service between Washington, D.C., and Moscow took off the other day from Dulles International Airport.

Aboard the IL-62 turbojet, flagship of Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, were American travel writers, legislators and other VIPs invited to sample the tourist attractions of the Soviet Union and to discover first-hand whether the Russians are serious about his business of "detente"— not just on a goverment- to- government level but a people- to- people one.

They apparently are, judging from statements by Aeroflot, which up to now has been restricted to operating only from New York, An official expressed hope that the new Washington-Moscow service would present the opportunity of discovering the "unknown" Soviet Union to a wider segment of the U.S. travel public.

"There is much more to the Soviet Union that American tourists should be aware of," said an Aeroflot spokesman in good old American public-relationsese. "In addition to the cultural, historic and leisure appeal of our large cities such as Moscow, Leningrad, and Kiev, we think Americans will be pleasantly surprised by the subtropical climate and lush, tranquil beauty of our Black Sea Coast."

He went on to describe "fairylike winters with bright sunshine, sparkling snowflakes and dry frost, more bearable than the bone-chilling dampness of winters in the northeastern U.S." Still waiting to be discovered "are ski and winter resorts, which should have a special appeal to active sports enthusiasts."

If you're enthusiastic enough, you can book a round-trip first-class seat for $1,117. Economy fares will range from $836 in the fall and winter to $1,034 during the peak spring and summer months.

To make you even more enthusiastic, Paris, the one stop on the slight, is thrown in as a "bonus."

Tourism, like every other aspect of international dealings, is a two-way street, of course. After all, restrictions on travel by Russians in this country have only been in response to similar restrictions on Americans in Russia.

The Soviets seem to appreciate this fact, and it constitutes a — excuse the word — revolutionary departure from traditional Russian exenophobia.

Said the same Aeroflot official: "We hope that the sight of Americans strolling beside the Moscow River eating blini and Russian visitors eating hot dogs along the banks of the Potomac will be commonplace rather than a rarity."

Yet one wonders if they realize what they could be starting. Russians strolling along the Potomac will absorb a lot more of the American way of life than wieners and buns. And American rubber-neckers in Moscow or Leningrad or elsewhere, with their free and easy manners, will leave as much an impression on the Russians they meet as they will take away with them.

All eyes have been on the SALT nuclear arms limitations talks in Geneva and the peregrinations of Secretary of State Kissinger and His grave deliberations with Kremlim officials.

The real thing to watch for signs of the future shape of U.S.-Soviet relations may actually be the success of this attempt by the Soviet Union to introduce the hot dog lovers to the blini eaters.

GOODBYE SEDAN; HELLO BATTOLINE GASECTRIC

Among other accomplishments in a sweeping energy bill, the U. S. Senate has legislated the standard American sedan out of existence. If the House of Representatives follow suit, the average American automobile will be required by 1984 to deliver at least 20 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The passage of the bill may be symbolic only. Rising prices and declining petroleum supplies may accomplish the same result without congressional help long before 1984.

Would that someone could legislate the internal combustion engine itself out of existence. This polluter and consumer of resource that has too many other valuable uses has clearly seen its day.

Unfortunately, no replacement — neither an electric nor steam - powered car nor anything else — appears as a feasible alternative. Each has serious drawbacks and limitations.

Yet if we can't go all the way from the internal combustion engine to a new kind of power, maybe we can go partway — to some sort of hybrid vehicle which combines the maximum advantages and minimum disadvantages of two different power sources.

The hybrid most usually talked about is a gas- electric car. It's more than being talked about. Students at the University of Illinois, for instance, are in the process of building such a car. Their experimental hybrid has three main features:

— An electric motor operating at various speeds to drive the wheels through a gear train.

— A small internal combustion engine driving an electric generator.

— Storage batteries, with an automatic switching system.

The car is designed for expressway speeds of 65 to 70 miles an hour and a cruising speed of 55. In cruising, the car is powered by electricity from the generator. In starts and other power demands, as well as above cruising speed, the batteries automatically kick in to add energy. Below cruising speed and while stopped for traffic or signals, the batteries are recharging.

Fuel is saved and pollution reduced by using a medium - sized motorcycle engine running at a constant speed for maximum efficiency and minimum pollution.

More than 100 University of Illinois students in the electrical, mechanical and aeronautical engineering departments have been involved from time to time on the project.

Who knows? Maybe if enough people show them the way, Detroit may get involved in something similar one of these years.

RESEARCHERS FIND USE FOR REFUSE

Members of two horticultural research teams from Pennsylvania State University have found a constructive use for discarded anthracite mine refuse banks.

The scientists say that a refuse and nutrient combination will serve as well as an inexpensive substitute for the two million tons of topsoil now used annually in greenhouses.

Properly treated and crushed coal refuse is relatively inexpensive, abundant and can be trucked as far away as New York and Baltimore for less than the cost of soil, according to estimates.

By adding extra light and by balancing moisture levels in the refuse soiless medium, rose yields were increased 60 to 90 per cent above those of flowers grown in a soil mixture with natural light. Estimates of the cost of installing and operating the supplimentary lights in conjunction with the anthractie refuse growing medium indicate that the additional income from the first year alone would finance the initial costs.

More than 800 towering banks of refuse, 900 million tons in all scar the country-side of northeastern Pennsylvania counties. Over the years many of the banks have started to burn, either by spontanous combustion or as a result of trash fires, releasing sulfur gases into the air.

The scientists say the soilless growing medium, combined with techniques to enrich the atmosphere of greenhouses, has potential for production advances that can help Pennsylvania growers compete with the more favorable flower growing climates of California and Florida.

THE LEGACY OF PRICE CONTROLS

The legacy left by price controls is ample proof that our government should never again resort to controls as a means of "helping" the economy.

In August, 1971, when price controls were imposed, the Consumer Price Index was rising at a rate of about 3 percent per year. By 1973, after a year and a half of controls, the official cost of living increase was 3 percent per year. In the early months of 1974 the inflation rate was over 10 percent.

During 1971, the Wholesale Price Index rose by less than 3 percent. During the next two years, the Index rose over 20 percent.

Stock prices have fallen an average of 50 Dow Jones points below their level in August, 1971. From 1967 to 1972, consumer prices rose 25.4 percent, but the dividends on the Standard and Poor's list of 500 stocks rose only 5 percent, and the Dow Jones Industrials declined 4.5 percent.

These facts clearly indicate the futility of price controls. Yet controls do serve one purpose: they distract the public's attention from the primary cause of inflation, government deficit spending. Under the Nixon Administration, the federal debt had increased from less than $370 billion to over $480 billion. Until that debt is reduced, inflation will continue. Price controls will only make the situation worse. HLH

Black Giant Stirs: Political Leaders Around Nation Watch New Black Drive Against Daley Chicago Machine

WASHINGTON — There are seething Babylons in which the Democratic party isn't on speaking terms with itself -- especially within the central cities, particularly with its black followers, says on black labor leader who's determined to "show the party we're too big to fit into its vest pocket."

Home grounds of this black man, 56- year- old Charlie Hayes, executive vice president of the Coalition of Black Trade Unionists, is Chicago. He's launched an intriguing campaign against the powerful Mayor Daley- labor alliance but the news hasn't rippled much out of the city. Some insiders see Hayes and his colleagues as a band of black Don Quixotes. Some see them as downright silly. Some, inside the party and the labor establishment, are just waiting nervously to see what they'll see.

Without drawing any national attention, Hayes unveiled the Committee for a Black Mayor. When we spoke, Hayes, who is the committee chairman, said he has some 35 groups behind him -- though he appears to be acting independently of the sprawling Amalgamated Meat Cutters union of which he is an international vice president. Hayes is an old packinghouse hand.

"We're not in this for kicks," says Hayes. "We're in it to kick out Daley. It's tough. This is different from Tom Bradley's successful (mayoralty) drive in Los Angeles, or Dick Hatcher over in Gary, or Coleman Young in Detroit, or Ken Gibson in Newark and Maynard Jackson in Atlanta. They all became mayors, sure, but they didn't have to buck the country's most powerful, maybe the last, old- fashioned city boss machine. And here the unions are tied right with it.

"So we're rousing the black sleeping giant. After all we are one of the two basic supports of the Illinois Democratic party. We have helped it win governorships -- and we won that state for Jack Kennedy in '60."

Hayes said that long before they confront the Daley machine in the 1975 primaries, they'll consult with black mayors, especially in Los Angeles, Detroit and Atlanta, to learn "how it's done." Sure, adds Hayes, "we can use some advice."

Political realists predict Hayes's committee won't dent the Daley machine. But how much can the committee shake the "entrenched labor- Daley establishment," as Hayes puts it?

And what effect will ripple out of the run? Who knows? One can't even predict who'll be Vice President of the U.S. next year. But lots of black leaders are saying the "sleeping giant" will shake Chicago's politics. Even if Hayes and company merely make a strong showing, it will affect campaigns in such big cities as New York and Philadelphia, for example.

In New York City black political power potentially is enormous. There are those who'll wager the next mayor will be a black -- possibly Percy Sutton, now Democratic president of the borough of Manhattan. After all, much of the New York Democratic party's white community isn't on speaking terms with itself either.

There's this vest pocket theory. Democratic party leaders say the blacks just have no place else to go -- they've demanded Dick Nixon's impeachment, they've called George Wallace "repugnant" and "insulting," and they've been turned off by George McGovern and even Ted Kennedy.

But, retort the blacks, they can always go into the primaries. Or, as does Harlem's uncontested young congressman, Charlie Rangel, they can bargain hard for their votes in Congress. Rangel, a House Judiciaty Committee member, chairs the three- and-a- half year-old 16- member Congressional Black Caucus. He doesn't cross paths much with the Coalition Black Trade Unionists. And he has heard little of Hayes's Committee for a Black Mayor. But he bristles at the vest pocket attitude of the organized labor movement and the House Democrats. I do believe he's waiting only for the end of the impeachment marathon to cut loose on some of labor's "powerhouses."

Rangel doesn't get loud unless he's talking of his personal feud with Turkey over poppy- growing which puts dope pushers all over his home precincts. So he'll take some time out for this personal war against the dope pushers. But soon enough he'll get at the labor establishment especially AFL-CIO vice president Al Shanker, now seeking the American Federation of Teachers' national presidency. Rangel believes Shanker and his big local union haven't done right by New York's black school children.

And then the man from Harlem will tackle the building and construction trade unions, he says. And labor no longer can take for granted that the Black Caucus will be its automatic ally on the Hill, in the Democratic party or in the big cities.

So there are many black sleeping giants. And they watch each other. But not until Hayes announced his Committee for a Black Mayor of Chicago have they watched so carefully. If Richard Daley, oiling as he is, can be taken on, and shaken or beaten, that's the test. They reckon the Democratic party will have to "get with it" and get on speaking terms with the black communities in a hundred cities and congressional districts.

This isn't militant black power, clenched- fist street horseplay, they say. This is sophisticated power- bloc politics.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS

St. Clair Partner Was A CIA Front Man

WASHINGTON — A law partner of President Nixon's impeachment attorney, James St. Clair, was a front man until last year for the Central Intelligence Agency.

Paul F. Hellmuth, the managing partner of St. Clair's Boston law firm, has been associated over the past decade with an industrial security company called Anderson Security Consultants, Inc.

We have now established that the company was a CIA front until it was disbanded last year. Hellmuth was then listed officially as president of the firm.

We first learned of Anderson Security's CIA connections from confidential tape recordings of former presidential aide Charles Colson. He described the company as "wholly owned" by the CIA. Insiders at the CIA, he said, "call it an agency proprietary."

We located two former Anderson Security associates who completely confirmed Colson's charges.

Ostensibly, the firm distributed document shredders, conducted security sweeps and planned surveillance programs for industrial concerns. But behind this facade, Anderson Security also funneled money to support the CIA's clandestine operations.

The former associates told us that mysterious checks, written for large amounts, would frequently arrive at the office of the firm's secretary-treasurer, Virginia attorney L. Lee Bean, who would deposit the money in a local bank and disperse it upon instructions.

The secret instructions often came, say our sources, from James St. Clair's quiet law partner. Some of the mystery money was dispatched to Miami banks and was used allegedly to support the CIA's anti- Castro activities.

Our sources say that the Anderson firm's industrial security business was also a front to hide another CIA activity. One of the firm's primary functions, the sources say, was to shred sensitive documents discarded by defense contractors "so the Russians wouldn't get them."

This is a clear violation of the law. The National Security Act, which established the Central Intelligence Agency, specifically prohibits the agency from engaging in "internal security functions."

Yet for over a decade, Anderson Security employes regularly visited defense contractors to destroy classified papers. They hauled around a portable shredder, mounted on trucks and on a jeep- pulled trailer. Hot documents were dumped into the machines, mixed with water and ground to a pulp.

When the mess dried, it was cut into large, flat cakes and discarded. One real estate developer, affiliated with Anderson Security, wanted to use the super- secret pulp as insulation in the buildings he constructed, but the plan never worked out.

Former officials of the Anderson firm insist it was disbanded over a year ago. But CIA expert John Marks, coauthor of the controversial book, "The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence," who helped us with our investigation, learned that the company had apparently transferred its operations from Springfield, Va., to the Boston area a year ago. We have been unable to trace it further.

We contacted Paul Hellmuth who refused to discuss Anderson Security's links with the CIA. But he insisted to my associate, Joe Spear, that James St. Clair didn't know "the first thing about" the security firm.

Other lawyers close to Hellmuth told us, however, it would "greatly surprise" them if St. Clair were unaware of the activities of his managing partner. The ethics of the profession, said our sources, would demand such disclosure among partners.

At this writing, St. Clair has not responded to our requests for comment. Attorney L. Lee Bean was vacationing in Austria and couldn't be reached. A CIA spokesman informed us the agency would have "no comment."

INSIDE MAN: Former Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., who used to champion the mining industry as chairman of the House Interior Committee, has now turned up on their payroll as a $1,750- a- month lobbyist on the strip- mining bill.

In apparent violation of House rules which allow ex-congressmen on the floor only if they are "not interested in any ... bill pending before Congress," Aspinall has been genially arm- twisting his old pals right in the well of the House to vote against strip-mining controls.

Aspinall's employer, American Metal Climax, has a major stake in strip- mining, and Aspinall has been lining up interviews with his ex-congressional colleagues for mining industry types.

The House leadership, of course, is winking at the illicit lobbying even though it is going on literally under their eyes. As for the leathery, 79-year- old Aspinall, he is as scrappy as ever.

"Sure, I've been on the floor," he said. "But I'm not pinholing any members. I'm for a strip- mining bill that will have ecological protection and will permit strip- mining. After all, nobody ever said Wayne Aspinall wasn't a conservationist."

Actually, that is exactly what his environmentalist opponents have said for years, now more than ever as they sit in the galleries and helplessly watch him at work on the floor below.

Ann Landers

Charming Betsy has obnoxious husband

Dear Ann Landers: What does one do when half of the couple is lovely and the other half is obnoxious?

I'm very fond of a woman who lives near us. Betsy is intelligent, charming and great company. But her husband is a vulgar, foul- mouthed glutton who attacks food and drink as if he had been caged up for months. The man tells filthy stories and monopolizes every conversation.

Recently we had a series of dinner parties. I begged my husband to let me invite them for one evening. I knew Betsy would see the cars in our driveway and realize they had been excluded. My husband said, "Absolutely not."

When I ran into Betsy a few days ago, I could see the hurt look on her face, but I said nothing. Should I have? How do others deal with this problem? -- Across The Way

Dear A.C.: It's theage- old dilemma, "love her, can't stand him." (Sometimes it's the other way around.)

See Betsy in the afternoon and don't be uncomfortable about leaving them off your dinner party guest list. Obviously they HAVE been invited and the husband made a jackass of himself. Once is enough.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I and our 17- year- old daughter are planning a trip to see my aging in- laws. When we reach our destination, we will be staying in a motel for five days.

We don't have much money to spend and have decided to take one double room instead of an extra room for the girl. I told my husband that I want to sleep in the double bed with my daughter and he can use the other bed. He said, "Nothing doing. Edna knows we sleep together." (We have six kids.) My husband claims he is not comfortable unless I am sleeping next to him.

Ann, I know I won't sleep a wink in a double bed with my husband if Edna is in the same room. What should we do? -- Torn

Dear Torn: It's rather sweet that your husband is not comfortable unless you are sleeping next to him, but tell him YOU will be uncomfortable sharing a double bed with him in your daughter's presence.

As a compromise, get a twin- bedded room and ask them to move in a cot. You can occupy the twin bed next to your husband and Edna can sleep on the cot.

Dear Ann Landers: May I say something to "Phone Weary," the person who was furious because she was pestered by telephone solicitors?

I wonder how many people realize that a large percentage of phone solicitors are physically handicapped, or old folks struggling on a pension, or young mother with small children who can't get out of the house? They are just trying to make an honest living.

I'm a widow with two young children. I receive a small check from the government, but with the cost of living so high I must supplement my income by doing this sort of work. It's not pleasant to listen to the abusive language we get when we annoy someone. Phone soliciting isn't fun. We do it because we MUST. Thanks for a chance to speak out. -- Another Blistered Ear Lobe

Dear Lobe: Happy to oblige. It's like the old story about the two men seated across from one another and there's a number written on the middle of the table. "It's a six," insists one observer. "You're crazy," yells the other "It's a nine." It all depends on where you're sitting.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious -- lonely? Welcome to the club. There 's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity."

Jacksons mark 50th anniversary

KEYTESVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. James W. Jackson of Keytesville, located about 30 miles west of Moberly in North central Missouri, former residents of Southeast Missouri, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary July 7 with an afternoon reception from 2 to 5 at the First Baptist Church in Keytesville.

Jackson and the former Frieda S. Powell were married July 3, 1924 at the courthouse in Bloomfield.

Jackson was born in the Acorn Ridge Community and attended Skelton elementary and high school at Essex. He is a graduate of Southeast Missouri University (then called Cape College) and taught school for 44 years in the Missouri counties of Stoddard, Bollinger, Scott, New Madrid, Jefferson and Charlton, in which Keytesville is located.

Mrs. Jackson owned and operated a general store in Cape Girardeau County for 20 years.

The couple purchased land in Keytesville and moved there 12 years ago.

They have one son, James W. Jackson Jr. of Maryville; and three daughters, Mrs. Huitt (Hester) Barfoot of Hayden, Colo.; Mrs. Robert (Faye) Willett of Flint, Mich.; and Mrs. Joe (Eloise) Jones of Keytesville.

Miss Mauldin bride of Richard Smith

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. — The marriage of Miss Tanya Gaye Mauldin off Corpus Christi and Lt. Richard Michau Smith Jr. of Sikeston, Mo. was solemnized the evening of June 22 at the Protestant Chapel, Naval Air Station, Corpus Christi.

The double- ring ceremony was performed by Capt. L. J. McDonald.

The chapel was decorated with bouquets of white gladioli, mums and greenery. White satin bows and daisies decorated the pews.

Miss Mauldin is the only daughter of Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Tommie S. Mauldin of Corpus Christi and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shurford E. Mauldin of Albemarle, N.C., and Mrs. Sherry McDonald of Summerville, S.C. and the late John A. McDonald.

Lt. Smith is the son of Mrs. David E. Blanton of Sikeston and Richard M. Smith of West Palm Beach, Fla. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hax Smith of Coral Gables, Fla., and Mrs. George McClure Hearne of Poplar Bluff and the late George Hearne.

Before the service, Mrs. A. F. Haas, organist, played the following selections: "Romance" by Rubinstein, "Melody" and The Theme from "Romeo and Juliet" by Tchaikovsky, "Traumeri" by Schumann, The Theme from the Second Movement of Mozart's "Concerto No. 21," and "Morning Has Broken."

The bride entered to the familiar and traditional wedding march from "Lohengrin." Given in marriage by her father, she wore a gown of white polyanza with accents of Venise lace. The scalloped V neckline gave emphasis to the capelet triple tiered bodice. Lace and ribbon accented the empress bodice and edged the tiered ruffles. Venise lace motifs were at vantage points throughtout the full A-line skirt of formal length which in back fell into a chapel length train. The wide flounced hem was edged by Venise lace.

She wore a picture hat with an over-lay of white polyanza with Venise lace, trimmed with yellow rose buds, and her bouquet was of yellow roses, white orchids, tuberoses, and baby's breath.

Her only jewelry was a gold and pearl necklace, a gift of the groom.

Miss Mauldin chose Mrs. Arthur Hobbs of Sikeston, Mo., sister of the groom, as her matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Gregg of Pensacola, Fla., Miss Annie Yamada of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Patricia Meys of Long Island, N.Y. Miss Kate Hobbs, of Sikeston, Mo., niece of the groom, was junior birdesmaid.

The bride's attendants wore floor length dresses of white voile and carried colonial bouquets of starburst chrysanthemums and daisies tied with yellow and white ribbon streamers.

The groom chose his brother, Frank E. Smith of Sikeston, Mo., as his best man. Groomsmen were Lt. Ronald Grojean of Sikeston, LTJG Barry E. Hudspeth of Columbia, Mo.; LTJG James A. Wagoner of San Francisco, Calif., and Michael T. Mauldin of Corpus Christi, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Mauldin was attired in a pale blue floor length dress of ribbed, double knit, and Mrs. Blanton wore a yellow and white silk dress. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

The bridal couple left the chapel under the traditional arch of swords held by Lt. Steven Hazelrigg, Lt. Thomas J. O'Leary, LTJG James Wagoner, Lt. Frank Catalano, Lt. George Cairnes, LTJG Michael Moore, all stationed at the Naval Air Station at Kingsville; and LTJG Joseph Ellis and LTJG Barry Hudspeth, stationed at Naval Air Station of Pensacola, Fla.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Officer's Club. The bride's table was decorated with candelabras trimmed with white daisies and yellow chrysanthemums on either side of the tiered wedding cake which was topped with fresh flowers. The groom's table, overlaid with a yellow cloth, was decorated with yellow, gold and bronze mums. Both cakes were made by Mrs. A. F. Haas.

After a wedding trip to Europe, Lt. and Mrs. Smith will make their home at 800 Military Highway, Kingsville, where Lt. Smith is stationed.

Out- of- town guests for the wedding, other than those in the wedding party, were Mrs. Ronald Grojean and David E. Blanton of Sikeston, Mo.; Miss Carol Malone of Pensacola, Fla.; Mrs. Richard M. Smith Sr. of West Palm Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Steven Hazelrigg, Mrs. Thomas O'Leary, Mrs. Frank Catalano and Mrs. George Cairnes of Kingsville; Mrs. Michael Moore of Bishop; and Miss Janice Carter, Miss Mary Coronis, and Joey Pardu of Houston.

The rehearsal dinner for the bridal party and out- of- town guests was given by Mr. and Mrs. David Blanton of Sikeston on June 21 at the Petroleum Club in Corpus Christi.

A luncheon honoring the bride was given on the day of the wedding by Mrs. Arthur Hobbs of Sikeston.

A perspective on weight control; or 'should Santa Claus reduce?'

By LAURENCE M. HURSH, M.D.
National Dairy Council Consultant

Perspective is a wonderful thing. And it is often introduced or made clear by humor. My thought today is that while weight control is of serious concern to the medical profession, and of continuing fascination for the public, we should maintain a perspective on the problem.

For starters we ought to agree more on who really needs to reduce and who doesn't. As the title of this column asks, "Should Santa Claus Reduce?"

I was totally charmed by this question when I read a recent article in a medical journal titled "Culture, History and Adiposity, Or Should Santa Clause Reduce?" In the article, Dr. Kelly M. West, professor of medicine and continuing education at the University of Oklahoma in Norman, Okla., pointed out that what is considered ideal body weight can and does vary from culture to culture, and from one time period to another. A paper along this line also was presented at the recent annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The Ideal of Thinness

Now, it is a fact that in most of the Western industrialized areas, people profess at least to the ideal of thinness, of leanness. But surely we are not all practicing it, or we wouldn't constantly be inundated as we are by magazines and other media with diet plans.

So why not introduce a little perspective into the situation?

Must we be plagued if we are ten pounds overweight? I certainly think not. The trick should be, rather, to not add still more pounds. And perhaps that will take the discipline of eating a bit less and exercising more. So do it! But let's not talk about it all the time.

A reduction of 500 calories daily will reduce you one pound a week if you maintain the same amount of physical activity.

A diet that results in weight loss of more than two pounds each week is too restrictive and does not encourage long- term use. Too many people lose weight quickly, then put it on again. This is known in weight control circles as the "yo-yo syndrome."

What About Exercise?

Don't be discouraged if you read that you would have to walk for 14 hours to use up one pound of body fat. Instead, why not spread out the exercise? Walking a half hour more than you do now each day would cause you to lose one pound every four weeks or 13 pounds a year. Not bad, eh?

And finally, practice a little control over your behavior. It has a lot more to do with your overweight than you might think. One less cocktail would be a good place to start. Eating more slowly could help you to eat less. Form the habit of eating in one room in the house only. That way you won't associate eating with other activities, like watching televisionl. More on this next week.

Spainhower questions governor's appointments

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Christopher S. Bond is making "an impudent grab for complete control of each of the state's 14 reorganized divisions," state Treasurer James I. Spainhower charged last week.

Spainhower said it appears Bond has interpreted the 1974 reorganization bill in a way that permits him to make complete changes in the membership of boards and commissions at one time.

"My only concern is whether the interest of the people will be upheld," Spainhower said. "The governor may be right when he says state government will now be run more smoothly and with less time and effort. But he has apparently forgotten, or never learned, that the purpose of government in this country is not the same as that of big business."

The Treasurer called upon Bond to withdraw all appointments to state boards made to replace persons whose terms had not expired or who had not resigned. "I am not questioning the quality of the appointments made by the governor, nor am I questioning his judgment in matters which may come before these bodies should he try to assert his desire upon his appointees," Spainhower added.

By appointing all members to these major commissions and boards at one time, Bond is bringing politics back into areas where it has no place, Spainhower said. Bond is challenging a firmly established tradition of staggering appointments to major governmental bodies over several years.

Spainhower said Bond's legal right to make these appointments is a "matter for possible judicial determination. Be that as it may, I believe such action, whether or not technically legal, is in clear violation of a long and firmly established principle."

Spainhower said he had no plans for legal action at this time.

Responding in a prepared statement, Bond said that Spainhower's attack "merely represents another line of partisan attack."

"Appointments by the governor of new state department heads, including boards and commissions, was mandated by the people of Missouri when they overwhelmingly voted for reorganization two years ago," Bond said.

Bond's press aide, Hugh Sprague, said the governor is relying on a June 10 Missouri attorney General's opinion to support his power of making appointments at one time.

That opinion said commissions and board which have been retained under reorganization went out of existence on July 1 when reorganization legislation became effective. Then they came back into existence when they were included in the new reorganization plans. These departments in effect "succeeded themselves", but their members were not automatically retained.

According to the opinion, if the drafters of the 1972 reorganization constitutional amendment had desired retention of members of the commissions and boards, they would have specifically said so.

The opinion continued, "We believe it was the intent of reorganization to allow the governor greater flexibility in selecting employes responsive to him. But as a safeguard against an excessive accumulation of power in the office of the governor, the numbers of appointments requiring the advice and consent of the Senate was increased."

Sprague said the governor had not replaced all board and commission members appointed by previous administrations. For instance, four of six highway commissioners have been retained.

"However, in some cases we wanted new blood who would accept new ideas," Sprague added.

In a report on his first full year as Missouri's ombudsman, Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps said his office has handled almost 800 complaints and requests for information.

Most complaints have been about dissatisfactory agency decisions, Phelps said.

The lieutenant governor said he has had the full cooperation of all state officials, except the University of Missouri board of curators, in processing these complaints. The curators have refused to open their meetings to the public in accordance with 1974 open meetings legislation, but other officials have been anxious to learn about personal and proceedural failures in the state's government.

Phelps said the ombudsman role of his office had been accomplished cheaply because he has used 12 volunteer college interns during the school year. Three interns have been retained this summer.

His staff also has strengthened by the recent addition of Carl Flood, brother of former St. Louis Cardinal center fielder Curt Flood, Phelps said. An inmate of the Missouri State Penitentiary, Flood was convicted of a 1968 armed robbery.

Signers must be registered

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Signers of initiative petitions must be registered voters, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled today.

In the 6-1 decision favoring the position of Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick, the high court reversed the ruling of Cole County Circuit Court Judge James T. Riley in a case involving a petition to place a constitutional amendment on the ballot increasing the revenue for the state conservation commission.

Although Kirkpatrick had refused to certify petitions without signatures of registered voters on the grounds of the statewide voter registration law passed last year, the court said that law "has no application to..the question presented in this case," and refused to consider it.

Basing its decision on provisions of the constitution describing voter qualifications and who can sign petitions, the court said a legal voter, which one must be to sign petitions, is a voter who meets constitutionally proscribed requirements and who has registered to vote.

"The laws of this state now make registration and imperative prerequisite to the right of a qualified voter to vote," the court said. "It follows from this that the signature of a person qualified but not registered to vote is not acceptable on an initiative petition...because he is not at the time legally entitled to vote...".

Judge Robert E. Seiler, who filed the only dissenting opinion, contended the majority opinion violates a cardinal rule "that constitutional provisions relating to initiative and referendume are to be given a liberal construction to effectuate the policy adopted by the people— namely that they solemnly reserve unto themselves the power to initiative laws and constitutional amendments."

Seiler said there is no explicit provision in the constitution requiring petition signers to be registered voters.

"Registration has nothing to do with initiative and referendum," Seiler said. "Registration is a type of police regulation."

He also pointed out that as a result of the majority decision, determination of who can sign a petition will change every time the legislature changes voter registration laws.

The secretary of state's office said the decision will have no effect on its certification of petitions to place campaign finance reform and the repeal of the Sunday Blue Law on the November ballot.

Beaudean mound star

Rotary shut-out Hart's Bread 10-0, Malone & Hyde downed Collin's Construction 11-5, then Sikeston Standard defeated 15-6 and Malone & Hyde edged Flower Basket 10-6 in Musial League week-end action.

Beaudean starred in Rotary's three- hit shut out, winning over Chasteen. Braden led Rotary's hitting attack with a three- for- three plate performance, including one double. Close behind was McGill showing a two- for- two at the plate with one two-base hit. Beaudean and Beavers also powered doubles, helping rack up Rotary's 10 runs. Gwinn cracked a triple for one of Hart's three hits.

Larry Childers won the mound for Malone & Hyde in their match with Collins Construction. Phillip Stinnett and Alcock cracked a double each, but their effort and the five runs in the fifth inning were not enough to overpower Malone & Hyde. Bobby Stinnett was tagged with that loss.

Moore was Sikeston Standard's star in their game against Hart's Bread. He took the mound win, lead hitting with four and powered a two- base hit for the victory. Coffey, Pearson and Roberts also cracked doubles for Sikeston Standard and Dockins, Chasteen and Statler managed doubles for Hart's Bread. Gwinn took the loss.

Jeff Brasherr also made a good all- around performance for Malone & Hyde. He won the pitching duel against McClellan, and powered one homer and a double, sharing the hitting lead with Larry Childrers. Howard powered two doubles and McClellan managed one two- base hit for Flower Basket.

If you want to make a child happy give him a packet of gourd seeds to plant. The seeds are large and easy to handle — like pumpkin seeds — and they like to be planted directly into the garden — after all danger of frost. Once in the ground, they germinate quickly and grow at the rate of several inches a day.

Although ornamental gourds do grow as vines and need plenty of room, they can be grown up a chain-link-fence, trellis or chicken wire to save space, and they need a good sunny location.

Male and female flowers grow on the same plant. You can tell the females by the immature baby gourd at the base of each flower. When it is pollinated by an insect carrying pollen from the male flower, the baby gourd will then grow quite fast.

During late summer and fall the vines produce hard, odd-shaped gourds. Some look like pears and oranges. Others resome will be warted or striped.

The gourds should be picked with a short piece of stem intact, then dried and varnished to make long lasting decorations. Children will also love to play with the many different shapes, creating animals and birds by sticking legs and heads on them.

Another trick, while the gourds are half-grown is to scratch your child's name on the skin. Where the skin is scratched the gourd will form a scab, and as it grows your child's name will be permanently displayed, growing bigger

TRCC budget examined

POPLAR BLUFF — Trustees of Three Rivers Community College met Wednesday night to examine a preliminary budget for 1974-75, which will be revised for final presentation and adoption at the August meeting.

They also examined a year- end summary for 1973-74 which will be audited. The summary showed minor variation in both income and expenditure from the original budget.

Highlights of the summary indicate a reduction of income from budgeted tuition and registration fees of approximately $7,200 and an increase in income for student financial aids in excess of $10,000. Total income was approximately $10,000 in excess of the budgeted amounts. On the expenditures side, the major variation from the budget was authorized additional expenditures of approximately $5,000 for capital outlay and $1,800 for student aids. Total expenditures were approximately $66,000 less than the budgeted amount.

Three new persons were employed for the staff and faculty. All were replacements rather than additions.

Ward Moore of Poplar Bluff, was reemployed as director of Public Information Services. Moore, former wire editor for the St. Louis Post- Dispatch, had been news media director for the college for several years but resigned in 1973 so that he and Mrs. Moore could travel extensively in Europe.

John Gregor, part- time instructor in developmental mathematics, was employed to instruct at the student services center which provides highly specialized services to selected students. Mrs. Gregor is employed by the Poplar Bluff Public Schools.

Miss Teresa Pearson was employed as secretary in the Learning Resources Center (library). She replaces Mrs. Maria Van Ella who was reassigned as secretary to Orville Krauss, career education counselor and student placement officer.

Title 1 services to be continued to private schools

JEFFERSON CITY — For the coming year, at least, Missouri will continue to provide Title I instructional services to private and parochial school students, but the State Board of Education will insist that the final constitutionality of the practice be determined.

The state board's action at its July 15-16 meeting follows the United States Supreme Court decision on June 10 of the much publicized Missouri church- state case, Barrera vs. Wheeler.

During the past school year, Title I paid teachers have been used in non- public schools during the regular school day under an order issued by the U.S. District Court.

Last year, Missouri received about $25 million in federal Title I funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which was designed to provide support for educationally disadvantaged children. Local school districts employed 3,292 Title I teachers to serve 63,934 public school children. In the nonpublic schools 171 Title I teachers served 4,018 students.

In its June 10 decision, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that Missouri must provide comparable but not identical Title I services to nonpublic school students. The Court further stated, however, that Missouri's constitutional (stateschool spending proscriptions regarding the use of public funds for nonpublic schools were not to be preempted. The Supreme Court noted that the question of whether federal funds are public funds has not been resolved under Missouri law. The case was then remanded by the Supreme Court to the United States District Court in Kansas City.

In regard to this Supreme Court ruling, the State Board of Education adopted a three-part resolution in which it expressed its strong conviction that Title I federal funds are public funds subject to Missouri law and ordered Commissioner Arthur L. Mallory to seek a final settlement of the issue as quickly as possible. In all probability this means, eventually, a decision by the Missouri Supreme Court.

As adopted, the resolution says: "... be it resolved by the Missouri State Board of Education that a transition period be provided during the 1974-75 school year to permit an orderly adjustment in Title I, ESEA, programs by continuing the use of Title I paid teachers in nonpublic schools during the regular school day to provide instructional services on the same basis as those provided in public schools, in accordance with guidelines developed pursuant to the Injunction and Judgment issued by the U.S. district Court on May 9, 1973;

"Be it further resolved that the State Board of Education instruct its attorney to seek a resolution, through the state courts, of the question of whether Missouri law prohibits or does not prohibit the use of Title I funds for on- the-premises private school instruction, and that the U.S. District Court be asked to assist, in any way possible, all interested parties in obtaining an early answer in the state courts; and

"Be it further resolved that the staff of the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education be directed to develop a proposed state plan for the administration of Title I, ESEA, services to eligible nonpublic schoolchildren by local educational agencies that would meet the comparable, but not necessarily identical, services requirement of the Act for consideration of the State Board of Education at their September 1974 meeting."

Following the reorganization of state government, which became effective July 1, this was the first full business session of the new State Board of Education appointed by Gov. Christopher Bond.

Mrs. Eleanor B. Griffith of Excelsior Springs was elected board president. Zack F. Bettis of St. Louis, was elected vice-president.

Other members of the board are Dale M. Thompson of Kansas City; Dr. R. Jerome Williams of St. Louis; Myron Woolever of Unionville; and Nolan R. Hutcheson of Houston.

Another member of the board, James B. Tatum of Anderson, just appointed by Gov. Bond, resigned his appointment prior to the meeting, stating that he felt obligated to continue his long-standing association with the community college movement. He now serves as a trustee of Crowder College.

Tatum's resignation leaves two vacancies on the State Board of Education.

The next meeting of the board has been set for Aug. 5 in Jefferson City.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Once as he was teaching in the synagogue, a man possessed by a demon began shouting at Jesus, "Go away! We want nothing to do with you, Jesus from Nazareth. You have come to destroy us. I know who you are — the Holy Son of God." Jesus cut him short. "Be silent!" he told the demon. "Come out!" The demon threw the man to the floor as the crowd watched.

What's the law?

The case of the congenial spot

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Pamalot was a quiet and peaceful little residential town and its officials and inhabitants wanted to keep it that way. In fact, if they could have, they would have prohibited it from raining until after sundown, required the morning fog to disappear by 8 a.m., set a legal limit to the snowfall, forbid July and August from becoming too hot, and made it a crime for winter to arrive before December and to leave by March the second on the dot.

Unable to pass such desirable legal laws, however, the officials passed the only law they could to preserve their congenial little spot. They zoned the entire town as a residential district.

"You can't make a whole town residential," protested Mr. Wimple. "I was going to put up a couple of stores at the main intersection. Certainly, to impose solitary refinement upon everybody can't be legal."

"We don't need any stores," retorted the officials. "There are plenty of them in the shopping center just a few miles away. What we need is to preserve the blinking of lightning bugs and not neon lights."

Intent upon putting up his stores, Mr. Wimple attacked the validity of the zoning regulation in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Mr. Wimple to put up his stores by knocking down the zoning regulation?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the reasonableness of zoning ordinances must be judged by the circumstances of each particular case. In this case, concluded the judge, there was nothing arbitrary or unreasonable in the town preserving its residential character where the business and industrial needs of its inhabitants were supplied by other accessible areas in the community at large.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

"If you have ears, listen! And be sure to put into practice what you hear." (Mark 4:23-24)

PRAYER: Our Father, heal the deafness of our minds. Deliver us from careless listening. Help us interpret what You say into meaningful action. Amen.

Will Rogers, one of America's most beloved humorists, was the only comedian commemorated on an American postage stamp and is the only entertainer to have an honorary statue in the U.S. Capitol, The World Almanac notes. The day of his funeral, every movie theater in America darkened its screen for five minutes and the two national radio networks observed a half hour of silence in his memory.

'Gypsy' to open 1 week engagement in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS — The London West End production of Angela Lansbury in "Gypsy," which premiered May 29 at Piccadilly Theatre in London and has established itself as one of the most successful American musical comedies in London's stage history, will be presented for a one- week engagment at Municipal Opera beginning Monday evening.

The entire current company starring Miss Lansbury will open at the Winter Garden Theatre on Broadway Sept. 15.

Seats are still available for all performances and may be purchased at the Forest Park box office daily and Sundays from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. and at all Municipal Opera branch ticket offices.

Suggested by the memoirs of the late Gypsy Rose Lee, the book "Gypsy" was written by Arthur Laurents.

Laurents is repeating his London assignment as director of the well- received "Gypsy."

Angela Lansbury, a three-time Academy Award nominee for her performance in "Gaslight," "The Picture of Dorian Gray" and "The Manchurian Candidate," won her first Tony Award (and the New York Drama Critics' Award) for her memorable portrayal of the musical comedy "Mame." Her distinguished performance in the musical version of "The Madwoman of Chaillot" won for her, a second prized Tony Award. Prior to ther widely-acclaimed British stage role of Mama Rose in "Gypsy," Miss Lansbury made her sole London state appearance in 1972 with Dame Peggy Ashcroft in the Royal Shakespeare company's production of Edward Albee's "All Over."

Hailed by the British press corps as "the most exciting thing to have happened in London since V-E Day," Angela Lansbury's "Gypsy" was sold out after it opened last May until it closed March 2.

Miss Lansbury was voted Best Actress of 1973 by the London Theatre Critics Plays and Players Awards. It is the first time that this award has been given to an actress in a musical in London.

Featured with Miss Lansbury in "Gypsy" will be Zan Charisse, Rex Robbins, Mary Louise Wilson and Bonnie Langford.

8 testify against rate hike

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP)—Eight witnesses testified against a proposed rate increase requested by the Laclede Gas Co. during a hearing conducted by the Missouri Public Service Commission here Thursday.

The increase is to raise $12 million annually in additional revenue in Laclede's service area, including an estimated $130,000 in the Poplar Bluff area which is served by Laclede's subsidiary, Missouri Natural Gas.

Former Mayor Bernard Wheetley told the commission that residents of an area near Poplar Bluff but served by another gas utility paid about 30 per cent less for service. He said an increase should not be allowed until all gass rates were equalized.

Two business representatives, John W. Sisson of the Rowe Furniture Co. plant, and David Strand, production support manager of the Reinell Boat Co., said their firms would lose money because of the increase in gas rates.

Commissioner Willard Reine said the two-hour session was an "outstanding" hearing.

Workers get $860,000 in back pay

KANSAS CITY — Activities of the U. S. Labor Department's Employment Standards Administration (ESA) resulted in the restoration of $861,683 to 4,422 Missourians who had been underpaid under various federal statutes, the U.S. Labor Department in Kansas City announced Friday.

Doyle I. Loveridge, who heads ESA in a four- state region which includes Missouri, said compliance officers turned up a total of $1,371, 296 owed to 7,158 Missourians in the fiscal year that ended June 30.

More than half the restored pay, $449,039, was in unpaid overtime wages, which went to 3,081 workers. Of those who were paid less than the legal minimum wage, 2,154 got $183,635. The basic minimum wage is $2 an hour, though for some jobs the floor is $1.90.

The difference between amounts of back pay found due, and that restored, while large, may diminish in the near future, Loveridge said.

Part of it is represented by cases still in the courts, and much of it is uncollectable for various reasons, including insolvency of employers.

But Loveridge said the recent amendments to the act give the department the right to sue for double the back wages due, which it could not do before. Several such suits have been filed, he said, and he expects this action to increase voluntary back wage payments.

Back pay totaling $131,453 was restored to 321 workers, most of them women, under the Equal Pay Act, which requires equal pay for substantially equal work, regardless of sex.

Under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, Loveridge said $46,877 was restored to 10 workers. That law prohibits discrimination in pay, hiring, promotion, or otherwise, against workers between 40 and 65 years of age.

And four workers got back $714 which had been withheld by garnishment actions made illegal by the Consumer Credit Protection Act, which limits the amount of a worker's disposable income which may be garnished.

Labor department compliance officers found 102 children employed illegally under the child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Loveridge pointed out that the newly revised child labor provisions now permit levying a $1,000 civil penalty for each violation.

Over the four- state region administered from Kansas City, the Labor Department supervised return of $2,315,012 to 9,949 underpaid workers, Loveridge said.

Most income restoration is voluntary, Loveridge said. However, a variety of court actions is possible to recover back pay when employers refuse to pay it.

Prior to the recent amendment giving the department the right to sue for double the amount due, the principal legal procedure was to seek a U.S. district Court injunction, barring violation of the act, and ordering payment of wages withheld.

Regional Solicitor of Labor T. A.Housh Jr., the head of the department's legal arm in Kansas City, said his lawyers participated in the recovery of $528,906 in the recently ended fiscal year.

They filed 49 court actions, obtained 42 decisions, and at year's end, had 54 suits pending.

Wage- Hour Division area offices are located in both Kansas City and St. Louis, and compliance officers are stationed in other cities. All offices are listed in the telephone book under U. S. Government.
